INTRODUCTION

Pursuant to the Federal Program Information Act, Public Law 95-220, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) disseminates information on Federal domestic assistance programs through the Federal Assistance Programs Retrieval System (FAPRS) and the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance. The Office of Management and Budget maintains a Federal assistance information data base from which program information is obtained.

The Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance is a Government-wide compendium of Federal programs, projects, services, and activities which provide assistance or benefits to the American public. It contains financial and nonfinancial assistance programs administered by departments and establishments of the Federal Government.

As the basic reference source of Federal programs, the primary purpose of the Catalog is to assist users in identifying programs which meet specific objectives of the potential applicant, and to obtain general information on Federal assistance programs. In addition, the intent of the Catalog is to improve coordination and communication between the Federal Government and State and local governments.

The Catalog provides the user with access to programs administered by Federal departments and agencies in a single publication. Program information is cross referenced by functional classification, subject, applicant, deadline(s) for program application submission, authorizing legislation, and Federal circular requirements. Other sections of the Catalog provide users with information on programs added and deleted since the last edition of the Catalog, a crosswalk of program number and title changes, regional and local offices, the administrative requirements of Federal circulars, definitions of the types of assistance under which programs are administered, proposal writing, grant application procedures, and additional sources of information on Federal programs and services. Also included is a section on the legislative process and executive action regarding Federal programs, a chart on how to use the Catalog to locate programs of interest, and a chart describing the A-95 clearinghouse Project Notification and Review System (PNRS) along with the prescribed application procedures under which programs must be reviewed.

Programs selected for inclusion in the Federal assistance data base are defined as any function of a Federal agency that provides assistance or benefits for a State or States, territorial possession, county, city, other political subdivision, grouping, or instrumentality thereof; any domestic profit or nonprofit corporation, institution, or individual, other than an agency of the Federal Government. A 'Federal domestic assistance program' may in practice be called a program, an activity, a service, a project, a process, or some other name, regardless of whether it is identified as a separate program by statute or regulation. It will be identified in terms of its legal authority, administering office, funding, purpose, benefits, and beneficiaries. 'Assistance or 'benefits' refers to the transfer of money, property, services, or anything of value, the principal purpose of which is to accomplish a public purpose of support or stimulation authorized by Federal statute. Assistance includes, but is not limited to grants, loans, loan guarantees, scholarships, mortgage loans, insurance, and other types of financial assistance, including cooperative agreements; property, technical assistance, counseling, statistical, and other expert information; and service activities of regulatory agencies. It does not include provision of conventional public information services.

The Catalog is published annually, using the most current data available on the status of programs at the time the Catalog or the update to the Catalog are compiled. The basic edition of the Catalog, which is usually published in May, reflects completed congressional action on program legislation. The update, normally published in December, reflects completed congressional action on the President's budget proposals and on substantive legislation as of the date of compilation, and include information on Federal programs that was not available at the time the latest edition of the Catalog was compiled. The update must be retained and used along with the basic edition in order to obtain the most current information on program revisions.

The Office of Management and Budget distributes free copies of the Catalog to National, State and local offices. At the national level copies are provided to: Members of Congress, congressional staff, and Federal offices of the U.S. Government. At the State level copies of the Catalog are provided to: Governors, State Coordinators of Federal-State Relations, Directors of State Departments of Administration and Budget Offices, Directors of State Departments of Community Affairs, Directors of State Planning Agencies, State clearinghouses, State Central Information Reception Agencies, Directors of State Agricultural Extension Services, State Municipal Leagues, State Association of Counties, Chief State School Officers, and State Employment Security Agencies. At the local level copies are provided to: Mayors, County Chairmen, Chairmen of Boards of Commissioners and city planners. Copies are also provided to the Federal Information Centers, Federal Regional Councils, Federal Executive Boards, and appropriate field and area offices of most Federal agencies. The Catalog is also provided to other agencies of State and local govenments down to and including those with a population size of 250. As part of the Administration's efforts to eliminate unnecessary budget costs, OMB has reduced the number of Catalogs being printed and distributed free of charge. Therefore, all of the offices listed above may not have copies of the 1982 Catalog. Private individuals who wish to receive a copy of the Catalog must contact the Government Printing Office, Superintendent of Documents, Washington, DC 20402. (See back cover of Catalog for subscription form.)

Program information from the Catalog is also available on machine readable magnetic tape and microfiche. These sources contain all textual material published in the program description section of the Catalog. The magnetic tape contains a characteristics record of coded program information extracted from the textual material. The characteristics record format allows the user to retrieve program numbers and titles, along with the program function, types of assistance, applicants, beneficiaries, circular requirements, obligations, matching requirements, geographic data, and authorizing legislation. From the text record, users may retrieve the complete text or specific sections of the program text. The accompanying documentation describes the procedures for retrieving program information. The tape or microfiche may be purchased from the Department of Commerce, National Technical Information Service, 5285 Port Royal Road, Springfield, Virginia 22151. The identifying accession number must be obtained from OMB.

The Federal Assistance Programs Retrieval System (FAPRS) is a computerized question-answer system designed to provide rapid access to Federal domestic assistance program information. The system provides information on Federal programs which meet the developmental needs of the applicant and for which the applicant meets basic eligibility criteria. Program information provided by FAPRS is determined from input supplied by the requestor. Input includes the name of the State, county, city, town, or federally designated Indian tribe for which program information is requested; the population of the city or town; the type of applicant (e.g., State or local governments, federally designated Indian tribal governments, nonprofit organizations, small businesses, individuals), the type of assistance under which programs are administered (e.g., grants, loans); and the specific functional categories and subcategories of interest. Based upon the input supplied, the output consists of 1) a list of program numbers and titles, 2) the full text of selected programs, or 3) specific sections of the program text. FAPRS also offers the user the opportunity to comment on the system and the information provided.

As originally developed, FAPRS was designed to aid small, rural, isolated communities unfamiliar with Federal assistance programs or unable to locate Federal aid programs that had the greatest funding potential. FAPRS may now be accessed by both rural and urban communities. An enhanced version of FAPRS has been developed based on an analysis of FAPRS users and an OMB study of the overall requirements for Federal information systems. The following features have been incorporated into the new FAPRS system:

1. Expansion of functional categories and subcategories. As listed in the Functional Index of the Catalog, the enhanced version of FAPRS uses 20 functional categories and 176 subcategories to specify areas of interest.

2. Expansion of eligibility applicants to include 12 government related and 10 non-government related applicant types.

3. Specification of the type(s) of assistance desired as one of the search criteria. At present, programs are administered through 15 types of assistance.

4. Display of definitions for functional subcategories, applicant types, and types of assistance.

5. Selection of specific sections of the program text to be displayed.

6. Formatted display of Federal circular coordination requirements for a selected list of programs.

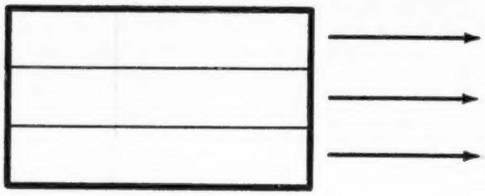
States have designated access points where FAPRS searches may be requested. In addition, bulletins on FAPRS are available from the system to inform users of the addition or deletion of programs, changes to program numbers from one update cycle to the next, and enhancements or changes to the system. For further information on FAPRS, the location of the nearest State access point, or a list of the timesharing companies from which interested persons may arrange for direct access to the system, write to the Office of Management and Budget, Budget Review Division, Federal Program Information Branch, Washington, D.C. 20503.

How To Use the Catalog

The application procedures information in the following section is general in nature and may vary depending upon the type of applicant, type of assistance offered under a program, or the nature of the particular program or project. Potential applicants are urged to carefully review the requirements indicated in each program, since evaluation of applications are based upon the degree to which program requirements have been met.

The following page contains a chart which suggests how to use the Catalog. By following the steps outlined in each block, the user will have extracted all of the Catalog data pertaining to a Federal assistance program. For matters too complex, or those which frequently change, potential applicants are encouraged to obtain this information from the Federal agency contact listed in the Information Contacts section of the program descriptions. The Federal agency contact will also supply detailed information and specific guidance on applying for Federal assistance.

Each block in the chart is divided into three sections:



Describes the type of action to take.

Identifies the appropriate Catalog section for reference.

Details the important aspects to consider and note.

Using the Chart

Users should start at the top of the chart with the blocks indicating LOCATE PROGRAM. Use one or more of these blocks depending upon the type of information you have regarding your Federal assistance interests. Move down the chart collecting and noting information as you proceed until you reach the block indicating APPLICATION SUBMISSION. Once you have identified the Federal program you believe fits your objective or proposal, you may process your application. Information on proposal writing and grant procedures are outlined in the Introduction.

Types of Assistance

Currently, programs in the Catalog are being classified by OMB into 15 types of assistance. (Cooperative Agreements as a type of assistance is used for programs administered under that mechanism. However, the definition is still being formulated and does not appear in this section.) Benefits and services of the programs are provided through seven financial types of assistance and eight nonfinancial types of assistance. The following list defines the types of assistance which are available through the programs. Code letters below (A through O) which identify the type of assistance) will follow program titles in the Agency Index, Applicant Eligibility Index, the Functional Index, Deadlines Index, and in the list of added programs.

A Formula Grants — Allocations of money to States or their subdivision in accordance with a distribution formula prescribed by law or administrative regulation, for activities of a continuing nature not confined to a specific project.

B Project Grants — The funding, for fixed or known periods, of specific projects or the delivery of specific services or products without liability for damages for failure to perform. Project grants include fellowships, scholarships, research grants, training grants, traineeships, experimental and demonstration grants, evaluation grants, planning grants, technical assistance grants, survey grants, construction grants, and unsolicited contractual agreements.

C Direct Payments for Specified Use — Financial assistance from the Federal Government provided directly to individuals, private firms, and other private institutions to encourage or subsidize a particular activity by conditioning the receipt of the assistance on a particular performance by the recipient. This does not include solicited contracts for the procurement of goods and services for the Federal Government.

D Direct Payments with Unrestricted Use — Financial assistance from the Federal Government provided directly to beneficiaries who satisfy Federal eligibility requirements with no restrictions being imposed on the recipient as to how the money is spent. Included are payments under retirement, pension, and compensation programs.

E Direct Loans — Financial assistance provided through the lending of Federal monies for a specific period of time, with a reasonable expectation of repayment. Such loans may or may not require the payment of interest.

F Guaranteed/Insured Loans — Programs in which the Federal Government makes an arrangement to indemnify a lender against part or all of any defaults by those responsible for repayment of loans.

G Insurance — Financial assistance provided to assure reimbursement for losses sustained under specified conditions. Coverage may be provided directly by the Federal Government or through private carriers and may or may not involve the payment of premiums.

H Sale, Exchange, or Donation of Property and Goods — Programs which provide for the sale, exchange, or donation of Federal real property, personal property, commodities, and other goods including land, buildings, equipment, food and drugs. This does not include the loan of, use of, or access to Federal facilities or property.

I Use of Property, Facilities, and Equipment — Programs which provide for the loan of, use of, or access to Federal facilities or property wherein the federally owned facilities or property do not remain in the possession of the recipient of the assistance.

J Provision of Specialized Services — Programs which provide Federal personnel to directly perform certain tasks for the benefit of communities or individuals. These services may be performed in conjunction with nonfederal personnel, but they involve more than consultation, advice, or counseling.

K Advisory Services and Counseling — Programs which provide Federal specialists to consult, advise, or counsel communities or individuals including conferences, workshops, or personal contacts. This may involve the use of published information, but only in a secondary capacity.

L Dissemination of Technical Information — Programs which provide for the publication and distribution of information or data of a specialized technical nature frequently through clearinghouses or libraries. This does not include conventional public information services designed for general public consumption.

M Training — Programs which provide instructional activities conducted directly by a Federal agency for individuals not employed by the Federal Government.

N Investigation of Complaints — Federal administrative agency activities that are initiated in response to requests, either formal or informal, to examine or investigate claims of violations of Federal statutes, policy, or procedure. The origination of such claims must come from outside the Federal Government.

O Federal Employment — Programs which reflect the Government-wide responsibilities of the Office of Personnel Management in the recruitment and hiring of Federal civilian agency personnel.

Organization of the Catalog

The Catalog is divided into three basic sections —— the indices, the program descriptions, and the appendices.

INDICES—To locate specific programs of interest, determine eligibility, and to obtain information on the dates applications for assistance should be submitted to the funding agency, users may consult the Agency Program Index, the Functional Index, or the Subject Index; the Applicant Eligibility Index, and the Index listing deadlines for program applications.

The Federal Agency Summary provides a description of the functions and activities of Federal agencies responsible for administering programs in the Catalog. Program numbers are also listed with the administering agency.

The Agency Program Index lists all programs in the Catalog in numerical order by the five-digit program identification number, the program title, the Federal agency responsible for administering the program, and whether the program offers financial assistance, nonfinancial assistance, or a combination of both.

The Functional Index Summary lists the basic functional categories and the subcategories which further identify specific areas of interest. Following the Summary is the Functional Index listing each program number and title under the appropriate basic category and subcategory.

The Subject Index provides a detailed listing of programs by various topics, popular name, general functional terms, categories of services, and selected beneficiaries, and is followed by the applicable program numbers. The Popular Name Index has been merged with the Subject Index.

The Applicant Eligibility Index is a listing in program number sequence, along with program titles, indicating the applicants eligible to apply. The index lists programs which may be applied for by:

— any of the several States of the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of a State exclusive of State institutions of higher education and hospitals;

— local governments which include a county, parish, municipality, city town, township, village, State-designated Indian tribal government, local public authority, school district, special district, intrastate district, council of governments, sponsor group representative organizations, and other regional or interstate government entity, or any agency or instrumentality of a local government;

— U.S. Territories (and possessions) of the United States which include the Commonwealths of Puerto Rico and the Northern Mariana Islands, the Virgin Islands, Guam, Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and American Samoa;

— Federally Recognized Indian Tribal Governments which includes the governing body or a governmental agency of any Indian tribe, band, nation, or other organized group or community (including any Native village as defined in Section 3 of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, 85 Stat. 688) certified by the Secretary of the Interior as eligible for the special programs and services provided by him through the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

— nonprofit organizations and institutions which include quasi-public, public and private institutions of higher education and hospitals, Native American Indian Organizations, and other quasi-public and private nonprofit organizations such as, but not limited to, community action agencies (CAAs), Headstart agencies, research institutes, educational associations, and health centers. Excluded under this definition are Government-owned contractor operated facilities or research centers providing support for mission-oriented, large scale programs that are Government-owned or controlled, or are designed as federally funded research and development centers;

— private individuals such as Native Americans, homeowners, students, farmers, artists, scientists, consumers, small business, refugees, aliens, veterans, senior citizens, low-income persons, health and education professionals, builders, contractors, developers, handicapped persons, the physically afflicted.

The Deadlines Index (for program applications) is a listing of program numbers and titles and the deadline date(s) by which funding agencies must receive applications. This information is also contained in the Deadlines Section of the program descriptions.

Users should also consult the following listings:

The Deleted Programs list which identifies programs that have been deleted since the previous edition of the Catalog due to: expiration of authorization or appropriation; programs incorporated into existing programs (which results in a deletion of program numbers rather than the program itself); termination of an agency; or the criteria for inclusion in the Catalog are no longer valid, (e.g., programs no longer operating with Federal funds).

The Added Programs list which identifies newly authorized and/or newly funded programs, programs that have been reinstated due to new authorization, or programs not previously submitted by a Federal agency.

Also included on this list are programs that have been split from existing programs and assigned new program numbers (which results in an increase in the number of programs previously funded rather than newly funded programs).

The Crosswalk of Changes to Program Numbers and Titles which lists programs that have undergone a title change, or a program number change due to restructuring of programs, or reorganization of a Federal agency.

PROGRAM DESCRIPTIONS——The center section of the Catalog contains descriptions of Federal programs listed by program number in the same numerical sequence as the Agency Program Index. Detailed information concerning programs are contained under the description headings of each Catalog program. The following is an explanation of each program description heading followed by examples of the type of information found under each heading.

NOTE: The program used in the example below does not exist. It is provided for the purpose of illustration only.

PROGRAM NUMBER, TITLE, AND POPULAR NAME — Each program in the Catalog is preceded by a five-digit program identification number. The first two digits identify the Federal department or agency that administers the program, and the last three numbers are assigned in numerical sequence. Thus, program number 10.500 is administered by the Department of Agriculture. 11.500 by the Department of Commerce, 12.500 by the Department of Defense, 13.500. (In the numerical sequence of program numbers, some numbers do not appear due to program deletions or consolidations. To accomodate users systems and records, the numbers are not assigned to other programs but are reserved for the reinstated programs.) The program title is the descriptive name given to a program. The popular name, which is less descriptive than the program title, is the name by which programs are commonly known or most often used by applicants and agencies.

Example: 13.259 Mental Health—Children's Services

FEDERAL AGENCY — The Federal agency is the Federal department, agency, commission, council or instrumentality of the Government, and the primary organizational sub-unit (the administering office) that has direct operational responsibility for managing a program.

Example: ALCOHOL, DRUG ABUSE AND MENTAL HEALTH ADMINISTRATION, PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

AUTHORIZATION — This section lists the legal authority upon which a program is based (acts, amendments to acts, Public Law numbers, titles, sections, Statute Codes, citations to the U.S. Code, Executive Orders, Presidential Reorganization Plans, and Memorandum from an agency head).

Example: Community Mental Health Centers Amendments of 1975; Public Law 94-63; Part A, Section 203(e); U.S.C. 2689.

OBJECTIVES — This is a brief statement of specific objectives stated in terms of what the program is intended to accomplish along with the goals toward which the program is directed.

Example: To stimulate innovative approaches to children's mental health problems emphasizing prevention and coordination of community services; to expand training activities and broaden resources for children's mental health services.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE — This section indicates the form in which the assistance is transmitted from the Federal Government and is initially received for use or distribution by the applicant.

Example: Project Grants.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS — This section describes the potential uses for the assistance provided to meet stated objectives, and the specific restrictions placed upon the use of funds. The section cites one or numerous applications depending upon the nature of a particular program, and whether the program is suitable for joint funding under OMB Circular No. A-111. Since this section translates objectives into the uses of a program, users may develop a clearer understanding of the program's objectives.

Example: Support for Continuation Grants only. Program authorizes funds on a matching basis for initial staffing of facilities offering mental health services for children. Staffing grants may be used for a portion of the costs of professional and technical personnel to operate a facility for child mental health services; a higher percentage may be paid if an area has been designated a poverty area by the Secretary, HHS. The proposed program must provide consultation and coordinating services with other community agencies serving children in service area, and must include a plan with the means by which it will be evaluated. JOINT FUNDING: This program is considered suitable for joint funding with closely related Federal financial assistance programs in accordance with the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-111. For programs that are not identified as suitable for joint funding, the applicant may consult the headquarters or field office of the appropriate funding agency for further information on statutory or other restriction involved.

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS:

Applicant Eligibility — This section indicates who can apply to the Federal Government for assistance and the criteria the potential applicant must satisfy. For example, individuals may be eligible for research grants, and the criteria to be satisfied may be that they have a professional or scientific degree, three years of research experience, and be a citizen of the United States. Universities, medical schools, hospitals, or State and local governments may also be eligible. Where State governments are eligible, the type of State agency will be indicated (State welfare agency or State agency on aging) and the criteria that they must satisfy.

Certain programs in the Catalog (e.g., the Pell Grant program which provides grants to students) involve intermediate levels of application processing, i.e., applications are transmitted through colleges or universities that are neither the direct applicant nor the ultimate beneficiary. For these programs, the criteria that the intermediaries must satisfy are also indicated, along with intermediaries who are not eligible.

Example: To be eligible for staffing grants, applicant must be part of, or affiliated with, a community mental health center, unless there is no center serving the community. Applicant may then be any public or private nonprofit agency providing, or coordinating with programs which will provide, a full range of mental health services for children and their families residing in the service area. Only support for continuation projects are currently available.

Beneficiary Eligibility — This section lists the ultimate beneficiaries of a program, the criteria they must satisfy and who specifically is not eligible. The applicant and beneficiary will generally be the same for programs that provide assistance directly from a Federal agency. However, financial assistance that pass through State or local governments will have different applicants and beneficiaries since the assistance is transmitted to private sector beneficiaries who are not obligated to request or apply for the assistance.

Example: Children and their families in the service area as well as personnel of schools and other community agencies serving children.

Credentials/Documentation — This is a brief description of the credentials or documentation required prior to, or along with, a request or application for assistance. Indicated are the eligibility factors that must be proved, certified, or established. This section also indicates OMB Circular No. A-87 requirements (Cost Principles Applicable to Grants and Contracts with State and Local Governments) where applicable, State Plan requirements, and whether Governors (or their designated Plan review agencies) must be given an opportunity to review the State Plan pursuant to Attachment A, Part III of OMB Circular No. A-95 (revised).

Example: Costs will be determined in accordance with HHS Regulation 45 CFR, Part 74, Subpart Q. Appendix C of that subpart, which applies to State and local governments, is based on OMB Circular No. A-87.

APPLICATION AND AWARD PROCESS:

Preapplication Coordination — This section indicates whether any prior coordination or approval is required with governmental or nongovernmental units prior to the submission of a formal application to the Federal funding agency. For example, programs may require 1) State agency approval prior to the submission of an application to a Federal agency, 2) preparation and submission of a State Plan under Part III of OMB Circular No. A-95, 3) coordination with State and areawide clearinghouses under Part I of OMB Circular No. A-95, 4) the submission of environmental impact information as required by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, and Executive Order 11514 of March 4, 1970, 5) coordination with the policies of OMB Circular No. A-102, (Uniform Administrative Requirements for Grants-in-Aid to State and Local Governments), or 6) a preapplication or preapplication conference. Applicants should also ascertain from the Federal agency the existence of other circular requirements not indicated by this section, and from the State any State requirements which may be in effect. Example: Preapplication consultation with the ADAMHA Branch of the HHS Regional Office is not mandatory. Application must be accompanied by evidence of approval and recommendation by the appropriate State agency or agencies. The standard application forms as furnished by the Federal agency and required by OMB Circular No. A-102 must be used for this program. Applications are subject to State and areawide clearinghouses review pursuant to procedures in Attachment A, Part I of OMB Circular No. A-95 (revised).

Application Procedure — This section discusses the basic procedural steps required by the Federal agency in the application process, beginning with the lowest level (e.g., State and local government units, institutions or organizations) and ending eventually with the Federal Government. Each program will indicate whether applications are to be submitted to the Federal headquarters, regional or local office, or to a State or local government office. If a State Plan is required, this will be indicated again in this section since 'applications' under formula grant programs are in the form of a State Plan. Numerous programs in the Catalog require the standard application forms in OMB Circular No. A-102 (Attachment M), other applications may be in the form of a written request to the funding agency stating the need for assistance and requesting available services, or a formal proposal prepared in response to an announcement in the Federal Register or the Commerce Business Daily. (See information and guidance on application procedures under Appendix I below.) Also indicated in this section is whether OMB Circular No. A-110 (Grants and Agreements with Institutions of Higher Education, Hospitals, and Other Nonprofit Organizations) applies to the program.

Example: Continuation Application Form ADM-115 should be used for staffing. Instructions and consultation may be obtained from the mental health section of the appropriate HHS Regional Office. Application is sent to the Regional Office with copy to Acting Director, Division of Mental Health Service Programs, NIMH, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857. This program is subject to the provision of OMB Circular No. A-110.

Award Procedure — This section lists the basic procedural steps for awarding assistance, beginning with the organizational components of the Federal agency that has final approval authority for the application and ending with the lowest level at which Federal resources are expended. Also indicated is whether assistance passes through the initial applicant for further distribution by intermediate level applicants to groups or individuals in the private sector.

Accepted applications are subjected to evaluation by the headquarters, regional, local or district office to determine the feasibility of the proposed project to include consistency with Federal and individual agency policies concerning its scope and purpose. Grant payments may be made by a letter of credit, advance by Treasury check, or reimbursement by Treasury check. At this time, notification of the award is also sent (by the Federal agency) to the State Central Information Reception Agency (SCIRA) as prescribed by Treasury Circular 1082. (SCIRAs are State agencies located in each State, designated by the Governor to serve as the central reception point for Federal grant-in-aid information. The Department of the Treasury provides Federal agencies with the addresses of SCIRAs.) Awards may be made by the headquarters office directly to the applicant, an agency field office, a regional office, or by an authorized county office.

Example: The Regional Health Administrator makes awards to approved applicants and provides required notification to designated State Central Information Reception Agency in accordance with Treasury Circular 1082.

Deadlines — When available, this section indicates the deadlines for applications to the funding agency which will be stated in terms of the date(s) or between what dates the application should be received. Reference is made to new applications, continuations, renewals, and supplementals. Application deadline information is also indicated in the Deadlines Index, in the agency's program guidelines, or announced in the Federal Register. Where not available, applicants should contact the funding agency for deadline information.

Example: Staffing: Determined by award period (contact the Regional Office).

Range of Approval or Disapproval Time — This section informs the applicant of the representative range of time required for the application to be processed (in terms of days and months) at the Federal level.

Example: 90 to 120 days.

Appeals — In some cases, there are no provisions for appeal. Where applicable, this section discusses appeal procedures or allowable rework time for resubmission of applications to be processed by the funding agency. Appeal procedures vary with individual programs and are either listed in this section or applicants are referred to appeal procedures documented in the relevant Code of Federal Regulations (CFR).

Example: Not applicable. (An appeal was not applicable in this case. A related program (13.231) allows applicants to reapply if revised applications are submitted.)

Renewals — This section advises the applicant whether renewals or extensions of applications are available and the procedures for such. In some instances, renewal procedures may be the same as the application procedure, e.g., for projects of a non-continuing nature renewals will be treated as new, competing applications; for projects of an on-going nature renewals may be given annually.

Example: This program is on-going and is renewed annually. Grantees are required to update their plan and submit a current year budget.

ASSISTANCE CONSIDERATIONS:

Formula and Matching Requirements — This section indicates the formula, matching requirements prescribed in the allocation of funds or maintenance of effort requirements. A formula may be based on population, per capita income, etc. Applicants are informed whether there are any matching requirements to be met when participating in the cost of a project. In general, the matching share represents that portion of the project costs not borne by the Federal Government. Usually a minimum percentage for matching share is prescribed by program legislation, and matching share requirements are included in the grant agreement. Attachment F of OMB Circular No. A-102 sets forth the criteria and procedures for allowability and evaluation of matching share requirements which may be cash or in-kind contributions made by State and local governments or other agencies, institutions, private organizations, or individuals to satisfy matching requirements of Federal grants or loans.

Cash contributions represent the grantees' cash outlay, including the outlay of money contributed to the grantee by other public agencies, institutions, private organizations or individuals. When authorized by Federal regulation, Federal funds received from other grants may be considered as the grantees' cash contribution.

In-kind contributions represent the value of noncash contributions provided by the grantee, other public agencies and institutions, private organizations or individuals. In-kind contributions may consist of charges for real property and equipment, and value of goods and services directly benefitting and specifically identifiable to the grant program. When authorized by Federal legislation, property purchased with Federal funds may be considered as grantees' in-kind contribution.

Maintenance of effort is a requirement contained in certain legislation, regulations, or administrative policies stating that a grantee must maintain a specified level of financial effort in a specific area in order to receive Federal grant funds, and that the Federal grant funds may be used only to supplement, not supplant, the level of grantee funds. Programs that have maintenance of effort requirements and have total allocations over $100 million (current FY) have the following statement in this section: This program has maintenance of effort (MOE) requirements, see funding agency for further details.

Example: Staffing: Federal funds on a decreasing percentage basis over a period of 8 years 90 percent - 1st and 2nd years; 80 percent - 3rd year; 75 percent - 4th and 5th years; 70 percent - 6th, 7th and 8th years. Non-poverty areas are entitled to: 80 percent - 1st and 2nd years; 75 percent - 3rd year; 60 percent - 4th year; 45 percent - 5th year; 30 percent - 6th, 7th and 8th years.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance — This section indicates the time period that the assistance is normally available, whether there are any restrictions placed on the time permitted to use the funds awarded, and the timing of disbursement of the assistance, e.g., lump sum, annually, quarterly, or as required.

Example: Staffing grants are limited to eight years by law. Payments either on a Monthly Cash Request System or under a Letter of Credit.

POST ASSISTANCE REQUIREMENTS:

Reports — This section indicates whether program reports, expenditure reports, cash reports or performance monitoring is required by the Federal funding agency, and specifies at what intervals (monthly, annually, etc.), this must be accomplished.

Example: Interim progress reports submitted annually as part of a non-competing application; report of expenditures due annually; immediate reporting of any inventions.

Audits — This section discusses audits required by the Federal agency. The procedures and requirements are set forth in OMB Circular No. A-102 (Attachment P).

Example: Under the total audit concept, audits will be made of recipients on an organization-wide basis (rather than grant-by-grant) under OMB Circular No. A-102, attachment P.

Records — This section indicates the record retention requirements and the type of records the Federal agency may require. Not included are the normally imposed requirements of the General Accounting Office. For programs falling under the purview of OMB Circular No. A-102, record retention is set forth in Attachment C. For other programs, record retention is governed by the funding agency's requirements.

Example: Three year record retention requirement; records shall be retained beyond the 3 year period if audit findings have not been resolved.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION:

Account Identification — This 11-digit budget code identifies the account from which a program is funded as expressed in the Appendix to the Federal Budget. For identification code 75-0350-0-1-551, the first two digits represent the Federal agency code, and the third through sixth digits identify the apropriation (or fund) basic account symbol assigned by the Treasury Department. Where two or more accounts with different Treasury basic account symbols are included in a consolidated program, 99 will be the third and fourth digits, the fifth digit will be the fund type and the sixth digit will reflect the sequence of consolidated programs for that fund type within the agency. The seventh digit identifies the timing of transmittal of budget estimates:

0-Regular budget schedules
1-Supplemental under existing legislation
2-Proposed for later transmittal under proposed legislation
3-Proposed for later transmittal under existing legislation
4-Supplemental - additional authorizing legislation required
5-Rescission proposal
6-Supplemental request pending

The eighth digit identifies the type of government fund involved:

1- General fund

General Fund Appropriation Accounts - Accounts established to record amounts appropriated by the Congress to be expended for the general support of the Government.

General Fund Receipt Accounts - Accounts credited with all receipts that are not earmarked by law for a specific purpose.

2- Special fund

Special Fund Appropriation Accounts - Accounts established to record appropriated amounts of special fund receipts to be expended for special programs in accordance with specific provisions of law.

Special Fund Receipt Accounts - Accounts credited with receipts from specific sources that are earmarked by law for a specific purpose.

3- Public Enterprise Revolving Fund Accounts - Funds authorized by Congress to be credited with receipts primarily from the public, that are generated by, and earmarked to finance, a continuing cycle of business-type operations.

4- Intragovernmental Revolving or Management Fund

Intragovernmental Fund Accounts - Accounts established to facilitate financing transactions within and between Federal agencies. These funds may be classified as intragovernmental revolving funds or management funds.

Intragovernmental Revolving Fund Accounts - Funds authorized by law to carry out a cycle of intragovernmental business-type operations. These funds are credited with offsetting collections from other agencies and accounts.

7- Trust Fund (non-revolving) - Funds collected and used by the Federal Government for carrying out specific purposes and programs according to terms of a trust agreement or statute, such as the social security and unemployment trust funds. Trust funds are administered by the Government in a fiduciary capacity and are not available for the general purposes of the Government. Trust fund receipt accounts are credited with receipts generated by the terms of the trust agreement or statute. Trust fund receipts that are not anticipated to be used in the immediate future are generally invested in interest bearing Government securities and earn interest for the trust fund. Trust fund expenditure accounts record amounts appropriated from trust fund receipts to be expended in carrying out the specific purposes or programs under the trust agreement or statute. A special category of trust funds called trust revolving funds is used to carry out a cycle of business-type operations, e.g., the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

8- Trust Fund (revolving) - A fund established to finance a cycle of operations through amounts received by the fund. There are three types of revolving funds: public enterprise, intragovernmental revolving, and trust revolving funds.

9- Deposit Fund - Accounts established to facilitate the accounting for collections that are either (a) held in suspense temporarily and later refunded or paid into some other fund of the Government upon administrative or legal determination as to the proper disposition thereof or (b) held by the Government as banker or agent for others and paid out at the discretion of the depositor. These accounts are not included in the budget totals and they are not available for expenses of the Government, although they do provide a means of financing the budget.

The last three digits represent the functional classification (code) used in the latest Federal Budget document, unless noted otherwise by the Office of Management and Budget. In cases where a program is split between two or more subfunctions: (a) if all subfunctions are in the same major function, the code is the same as for the major function; or (b) if two or more major functions are involved the digits '999' are used.

Example: 75-1361-0-1-550.

Obligations — The dollar amounts listed in this section represent obligations for the past fiscal year (PY), estimates for the current fiscal year (CY), and estimates for the budget fiscal year (BY) as reported by the Federal agencies. In each succeeding edition of the Catalog, the dollar amounts are revised to reflect changes which may result from supplemental appropriations, amendments, etc. Each program indicates what the obligation figures represent in terms of the type of assistance provided. Obligations for nonfinancial assistance programs indicate the administrative expenses involved in the operation of a program as an indication of the magnitude of the services being provided, or the items involved in obligations.

Example: (Grants) PY $19,853,000; CY est $20,407,000; and BY est $14,830,000.

Range and Average of Financial Assistance — This section lists the representative range (smallest to largest) of the amount of financial assistance available. These figures are based upon funds awarded in the past fiscal year and the current fiscal year to date. Also indicated is an approximate average amount of awards which were made in the past and current fiscal years.

Example: Formula: $26,355 to $691,481; $235,305.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS — This section briefly describes the accomplishments of a program using quantitative data, focussing on program output, results achieved, or services rendered during the past fiscal year, the current fiscal year, and projections for the coming fiscal year.

Example: In the past fiscal year, 140 applications were received and 140 staffing awards were issued. Approximately 147 continuation grants were funded during the current fiscal year and 103 are estimated to be funded in the budget fiscal year.

REGULATIONS, GUIDELINES, AND LITERATURE — This section lists the title, number, and price of guidelines, handbooks, manuals and other officially published information pertinent to a program. Since program regulations are published first in the Federal Register (FR) and later in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR), citations to the CFR are listed.

Example: Interim guidelines available in application kits.

INFORMATION CONTACTS:

Regional or Local Office — This section lists the agency contact person, address and telephone number of the Federal regional or local office(s) to be contacted for detailed information regarding a program such as: 1) current availability of funds and the likelihood of receiving assistance within a given period; 2) whether the program is suitable for joint funding (where not indicated in the Uses and Use Restrictions section of the program); 3) preapplication and application forms required; 4) whether a preapplication conference is recommended; 5) assistance available in preparation of applications; 6) written instructions on A-95 (Part I) procedures and other circulars; 7) whether applications must be submitted to both State and areawide clearinghouses; 8) location of the clearinghouses; 9) State Plan submission date and the Federal office to receive the plan; 10) the availability of funds for preparation of a State Plan; 11) whether funding decisions are made at the headquarters, regional or local level; 12) application renewal procedures (including continuations and supplementals) or appeal procedures for rejected applications; and, 13) recently published program guidelines and material.

For most programs in the Catalog, this section references Appendix IV of the Catalog (Agency Regional and Local Office Addresses); however, certain programs list contact information under this section because of the small number of offices and/or the small number of programs for which the offices are relevant.

Example: ADAMHA Branch of the appropriate HHS Regional Office (see Appendix IV).
(Appendix IV listing) Region 1
(Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont)
William Farrow
John F. Kennedy Federal Bldg.
Government Center
Boston, MA 02203
(617) 123-4567
(Use same 7-digit number for FTS)

Headquarters Office — This section lists names and addresses of the office at the headquarters level with direct operational responsibility for managing a program. A telephone number is also provided in cases where a regional or local office is not normally able to answer detailed inquiries concerning a program. Also listed are names and telephone numbers of information contacts for use by applicants in the Metropolitan Washington area.

Example: Dr. Steven Sharfstein, Acting Director, Division of Mental Health Service Programs, National Institute of Mental Health, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857. Telephone: (301) 123-4567 (Use same 7-digit number for FTS).

RELATED PROGRAMS — This section of the program description lists all programs in the Catalog that are closely related based on objectives and program uses. Applicants should also check these programs since they may provide additional assistance.

Example: 13.232, Maternal and Child Health Services; 13.233, Maternal and Child Health Training; 13.242, Mental Health Research Grants; 13.295, Community Mental Health Centers—Comprehensive Support; 13.630, Developmental Disabilities—Basic Support.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS: This section indicates the different types of projects which have been funded in the past. The examples give potential applicants an idea of projects that may be accepted for funding. With the exception of formula grant programs, with reporting requirements from a State agency to a Federal agency, both this and the following section pertain to most financial assistance programs.

Example: Awards are made only for staffing of facilities offering mental health services for children.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS: This section indicates the criteria used by the Federal grantor agency to evaluate proposals in order to inform potential applicants of the application review process and the criteria used to award funds for projects.

Example: The criteria for selecting proposals is based upon the extent the project will contribute to needed services and training, capability of applicant to provide services and training, more effective utilization of personnel providing mental health services, and development of new methods or information.

APPENDICES——The last section of the Catalog contains five appendices: Programs Requiring Circular Coordination (Appendix I); the Authorization Appendix (Appendix II); Budget Functional Code Appendix (Appendix III); Agency Regional and Local Office Addresses (Appendix IV); and Sources of Additional Information Contacts (Appendix V).

Appendix I — Programs Requiring Circular Coordination: The following is a brief description of the policy circulars referenced in the programs and in this Appendix. The description explains the purpose of the circulars, to whom they apply, and the general procedures to follow in applying for assistance.

OMB CIRCULAR NO. A-95 (REVISED) EVALUATION, REVIEW, AND COORDINATION OF FEDERAL AND FEDERALLY ASSISTED PROGRAMS AND PROJECTS (Attachment A, Parts I and III). Reference: Federal Register, Volume 41, No. 8, January 13, 1976.

Purpose:* Attachment A, Part I of A-95, Project Notification and Review System (PNRS), facilitates coordinated planning on an intergovernmental basis for certain programs through review by State and areawide planning and development clearinghouses of applications for Federal assistance. Reference to Part I of A-95 appears in the Preapplication Coordination section of the Catalog program descriptions.

Attachment A, Part III of A-95, State Plans, provides Governors and Federal agencies with information about the relationship to State or areawide comprehensive planning of State Plans which are required or form the basis for funding under various programs. Part III provides for review of such plans via the State clearinghouse. Reference to Part III of A-95 appears in the Credentials/Documentation section of the Catalog program descriptions.

Applicants: A-95, Part I applies to all applicants under any program covered thereby. Part III applies only to State agencies. For those programs covered by both Parts I and III, Part I applies to applicants for subgrants from the State agency administering a formula grant if the Federal agency must approve the subgrants. The State Plan required for the formula grant is reviewed under Part III.

Application procedure: Under A-95, Part I, clearinghouse review is normally completed in a 60 day, two stage process. Applicants submit a Notification of Intent (NOI) to apply for assistance to both the State and areawide clearinghouses in whose jurisdiction the project is to be located for a 30 day review period. Applicants then submit the completed application to clearinghouses for a 30 day review prior to submission of the application to the Federal funding agency. Comments made by or through clearinghouses must be submitted with the application to the Federal agency.

Applicants should check with the Federal funding agency for the names and addresses of the appropriate State and areawide clearinghouses. Applicants are urged to notify clearinghouses as early as possible in the application development process.

In various States, State law requires review of applications for Federal assistance under certain programs not covered by A-95, Part I. Such laws are enforced through State rules and regulations. Applicants are encouraged to ascertain the existence of such laws and to acquaint themselves with applicable procedures through contact with clearinghouses.

(See the Project Notification and Review System chart and narrative on the following pages for detailed application procedures under Part I of A-95.)

Under A-95, Part III, State agencies submit a State Plan to the Governor or the Governor's designated Plan review agency for a 45 day review period prior to submission of the Plan to the Federal funding agency.

OMB CIRCULAR NO. A-102, UNIFORM ADMINISTRATIVE REQUIREMENTS FOR GRANTS—IN—AID TO STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS. Reference: Federal Register, Volume 42, No. 176, September 12, 1977.

Purpose:* OMB Circular No. A-102 establishes uniform administrative requirements for programs that provide financial assistance through grants to State and local governments. It is intended to promote uniformity and consistency among Federal agencies in administration of grants by establishing standards in 16 areas. These areas include records retention, matching share, standards for grantees financial management systems, financial reporting requirements, standard forms for applying for Federal assistance, and audit standards. Only specific requirements imposed by the legislation establishing a grant program can take precedence over these and other standards included in the circular. Reference to this circular appears in the Preapplication coordination section of programs to which the requirement applies.

Applicants:* State, local and federally recognized Indian tribal governments exclusive of institutions of higher education and hospitals.

Application procedure:* Along with other administrative requirements of this circular, Attachment M sets forth the standard application forms to be used by State and local governments in applying for Federal grants except those Federal formula grants which do not require grantees to apply for Federal funds on a project basis. As indicated in the Attachment the standard forms and their purposes are briefly described below and are available from the Federal grantor agency:

1. Standard Form 424 - Federal Assistance: This form, which replaces Part I of the following applications, must be used as a cover sheet for the preapplication and the application forms described below.

2. Preapplication for Federal Assistance: This form is used to: (1) Establish communication between the Federal grantor agency and the applicant; (2) determine the applicant's eligibility; (3) determine how well the project can compete with similar applications from others; and (4) eliminate any proposals which have little or no chance for Federal funding before applicants incur significant expenditures for preparing an application. Preapplication forms shall be required for all construction, land acquisition and land development projects or programs for which the need for Federal funding exceeds $100,000. The Federal grantor agency may require the use of the preapplication form for other types of grant programs or for those for which the Federal fund request is for $100,000 or less. In addition, Federal agencies shall establish procedures allowing State and local government applicants to submit, if they so desire, the preapplication form when mandatory requirements for preapplication do not exist.

3. Federal Assistance Application for Nonconstruction Programs: This form is designed to accommodate several programs and shall be used by the applicant for all actions covered by Attachment M except where the major purpose of the grant involves construction, land acquisition, or development or single-purpose and one-time grant applications for less than $10,000 which do not require clearinghouse approval, an environmental impact statement, or the relocation of persons, businesses, or farms.

4. Federal Assistance Application for Construction Programs: This form is required for all grants where the major purpose of the program involves construction, land acquisition, and land development, except when the Application for Federal Assistance-Short Form is used.

5. Application for Federal Assistance — Short Form: This form is used for all grants for single-purpose and one-time grant applications for less than $10,000 not requiring clearinghouse approval, an environmental impact statement, or the relocation of persons, businesses, or farms. Federal grantor agencies may, at their discretion, authorize the use of this form for applications for larger amounts.

For all forms described herein all requests by grantees for changes, continuations, and supplementals to approved grants shall be submitted on the same form as the original application. For these purposes, only the required pages of the forms should be submitted.

OMB CIRCULAR NO. A-110, GRANTS AND AGREEMENTS WITH INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER EDUCATION, HOSPITALS, AND OTHER NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS. Reference: Federal Register, Volume 41, No. 148, July 30, 1976.

Purpose: Sets forth administrative requirements for the administration of grants and other agreements to include money or property in lieu of money; does not include technical assistance programs providing services, or loans, loan guarantees, insurance, or direct payments to individuals. Reference to this circular appears in the Application Procedure section of programs that apply.

Applicants: Public and private institutions of higher education, hospitals, and other quasi-public and nonprofit organizations. The circular applies to agencies administering grants made to the above recipients and to their sub-recipients. (This circular does not apply to State and local governments covered by OMB Circular No. A-102.)

Application procedure: Standard Form 424 must be used for applications when applying for grants under programs covered by Attachment A, Part I of OMB Circular No. A-95 (revised).

OMB CIRCULAR NO. A-111, JOINTLY FUNDED ASSISTANCE TO STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS. Reference: Federal Register, Volume 41, No. 148, July 30, 1976.

Purpose: Establishes policies and procedures to be followed in the joint funding of related programs of Federal assistance pursuant to the Joint Funding Simplification Act of 1974. Under one application, applicants may apply for resources available from more than one Federal agency, program, or appropriation, including assistance from State sources. Programs considered suitable for joint funding are identified in the Uses and Use Restrictions section of the programs. For programs that are not identified as suitable for joint funding, the applicant may consult the headquarters or field office of the appropriate agency for further information on statutory or other restrictions involved.

Applicants: State and local governments, Indian tribes, and nonprofit organizations acting separately or jointly in seeking assistance with respect to a single project.

Application procedure: Applicants submit the preapplication and application forms contained in Attachment H of this circular to the Federal Regional Council (FRC) in the region in which the applicant is located, and to State agencies from which the applicant requests assistance. If a Federal program being considered for joint funding assistance is subject to Part I of OMB Circular No. A-95, the entire joint funding application is subject to the policies and provisions of that circular. If an environmental impact statement is required, arrangements should be made for preparation of a joint or single environmental impact statement for the project. Applications for Federal assistance are submitted to the lead agency designated by the FRC. The FRC provides guidance and coordination on all applications for joint funding.

OMB CIRCULAR NO. A-87, COST PRINCIPLES APPLICABLE TO GRANTS AND CONTRACTS WITH STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS (formerly FMC 74-4). Reference: 34 CFR 255.

Purpose: Establishes principles for determining allowable direct and indirect costs applicable to grants and contracts (including subgrants and subcontracts) and provides standards for determining the allowability of selected items of cost. Reference to this circular appears in the Credentials/Documentation section of programs that apply.

Applicants: State and local governments and other applicants as determined by the Federal funding agency. This circular does not apply to publicly financed institutions of higher education (covered by OMB Circular No. A-21, Cost Principles for Educational Institutions, formerly FMC 73-8) or publicly owned hospitals and other providers of medical care subject to the requirements of the Federal agency.

c) Cost allocation plans will be retained at the local government level for audit by a designated Federal agency except in those cases where the designated agency requests that cost allocation plans be submitted to it for negotiation and approval.

d) At the grantee department level of local governments, the Federal agency with the predominant interest in the work of the grantee department will be responsible for the necessary negotiation, approval and audit of the indirect cost proposal.

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY CIRCULAR 1082, NOTIFICATION TO STATES OF GRANT-IN-AID INFORMATION. Reference: Federal Register, Volume 40, No. 226, November 21, 1975.

Purpose: Establishes procedures for Federal agency notification to the State Central Information Reception Agency (SCIRA) of the purpose and amount of grants or grants-in-aid in the form of cost reimbursable contracts awarded to States and local governments, (including the District of Columbia), and territories and possessions of the U.S. Also reported are all other types of Federal financial assistance (loans, loan guarantees, and insurance) awarded to State-affiliated institutions of higher education, quasi-public agencies and nonprofit institutions. Grants-in-aid covered by this circular are comprised of two categories for reporting purposes: 1) basic reporting of Federal assistance information which includes all grants or grants-in-aid in the form of cost reimbursable contracts awarded to State and local governments, and 2) supplemental reporting of Federal assistance information which includes all other financial assistance regardless of the recipient type, where there is a perceivable need for such information to facilitate State and local government planning, budgeting, or program administration. For basic reporting, Federal agencies submit a Report of Federal Action to the appropriate SCIRA using SF 424. Supplemental reporting is submitted to the SCIRA using the most practicable means available to the agency. As indicated in Appendix I, programs with one asterisk have been identified by agencies as basic reporting. Programs having two asterisks have been identified as basic as well as supplemental reporting. Reference to this circular appears in the Award Procedure section of programs to which the requirements apply.

Applicants: The requirements of this circular are applicable only to Federal agencies administering grant-in-aid programs.

Application procedure: This circular does not contain requirements for the applicant in applying for Federal assistance.

ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENTS

Purpose: Specific programs listed in the Catalog have been determined to have a significant effect on the environment and require an environmental impact assessment or an environmental impact statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 and Executive Order 11514 of March 4, 1970. (Significant effects include actions that may have both beneficial and detrimental effects.) Reference to this requirement appears in the Preapplication Coordination section of programs that apply.

Applicants: The requirements apply to applicants seeking assistance under programs identified in the Catalog, or other programs so identified by the grantor agency, as requiring an environmental impact statement or an environmental impact assessment.

Application procedure: In the early stages of project application, and in all cases prior to agency decisions concerning major actions on applications, the applicant should be advised by the Federal funding agency that environmental impact information is required (to be submitted under the agency's guidelines) in connection with the proposed project for an environmental assessment (to be made by the Federal agency), or an environmental impact statement (to be supplied by the Federal agency) concerning the project. Although the list in Appendix I is not conclusive, it contains programs normally requiring either an environmental assessment or an environmental impact statement.

Appendix II — Authorization Appendix: This appendix lists Acts, Executive Orders and Public Law numbers which mandate programs in the Catalog. Acts and Executive Order citations are listed in alphabetic sequence and Public Law citations are listed numerically by the Congress. The citations are followed by their corresponding program numbers.

Appendix III — Budget Functional Code Appendix: This appendix lists programs by the Budget functional classification. The three digits listed are the major and minor functional classifications used to identify the major purpose of the programs.

Appendix IV — Agency Regional and Local Office Addresses: This appendix lists the names, addresses and telephone numbers of the regional and local offices which should be contacted for detailed information concerning a program and for initiating the process for applying for assistance. In cases where a Federal agency does not have a regional or local office, the headquarters office listed in the program description should be contacted.

Appendix V — Sources of Additional Information Contacts: Additional information concerning Federal programs is available from Federal Information Centers, Federal Regional Councils, and Federal Executive Boards as listed in this Appendix.

CH State or Areawide Planning and Development Clearinghouse

The Project Notification and Review System (PNRS) is a two-part system consisting of two separate 30-day periods for review of applications by State and areawide clearinghouses commencing with the clearinghouses' receipt of the Notification of Intent (NOI) to apply for assistance. During the first 30-day period, the NOI is reviewed by the clearinghouses and submitted for comment to State agencies, local governments, and other public agencies whose projects or programs may be affected by the proposed project. During the second 30-day period, the completed, formal application is reviewed by the clearinghouses and comments returned to the applicant. The applicant then submits the completed application, including clearinghouse comments, to the Federal funding agency. The following pages contain detailed procedures applicants should follow in applying for Federal assistance programs covered by Attachment A, Part I of OMB Circular No. A-95 (revised).

Program Application Procedures

1. Applicant contacts Federal funding agency to:

   (a) request the agency's written procedures and regulations implementing the requirements of A-95, Part I;

   (b) obtain the address of the clearinghouses in whose jurisdiction the proposed project is located;

2. Applicant submits the Notification of Intent (NOI) to apply for assistance to clearinghouses for a 30 day review.

The NOI may be submitted on Standard Form 424. However, many clearinghouses have developed their own notification forms and instructions. Applicants are urged to contact the clearinghouses for this information in order to expedite the review process.

The NOI should include a summary description of the project for which assistance is being sought. Where not otherwise prescribed by the Federal funding agency, the summary should contain the following information, as appropriate and to the extent available (A-95, Part I):

(a) identity of the applicant agency, organization, or individual applying for assistance;

(b) the geographic location of the project to be assisted;

(c) a brief description of the proposed project (type, purpose, general size or scale, estimated cost, beneficiaries, or other characteristics which will enable clearinghouses to identify agencies of State or local government having plans, programs or projects that might be affected by the proposed project);

(d) a statement as to whether the applicant has been advised by the funding agency that environmental impact information is required;

(e) the Federal program title, Catalog program number, and the Federal funding agency as listed in the latest Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance.

(f) the estimated date the applicant expects to formally file the application with the funding agency.

Exceptions and Variations

If the applicant submits a completed application to the clearinghouse without having submitted a NOI (because of the project's simplicity or because the clearinghouse's procedures do not require a review at the notification stage), the clearinghouse may have a total of 60 days to review the completed application.

If the applicant submits both the NOI and the completed application within the first 30 days, the clearinghouse may have the number of days remaining in the initial 30-day notification period and the second 30 days to complete the review. (The submission of the completed application initiates the beginning of the second 30-day period.) If the clearinghouse cannot complete the review within 30 days, normally the applicant is notified to that effect.

If the applicant receives no response from the State or areawide clearinghouse within the allotted 30 days for review of the NOI, the applicant may contact the clearinghouse to ascertain the status of the NOI, or submit a completed application to the clearinghouse initiating final review of the application.

The clearinghouse may not wish to review the completed application; however, after the initial review, an information copy of the completed application may be requested by the clearinghouse at the time it is submitted to the funding agency.

Applications for renewal or continuation of grants, or applications not submitted to or acted on by the funding agency within one year after completion of clearinghouse review will be subject to a second review upon request by the clearinghouse. Part I of Circular A-95 also requires clearinghouse review of proposed amendments to applications as well as review of the original application. Review of amendments is normally completed within 30 days.

Special Purpose Unit of Local Government Versus General Local Government

If assistance is being sought by a special purpose unit of local government, the clearinghouses must assure that any unit of general local government having jurisdiction over the area in which the project is to be located has the opportunity to confer, consult, or comment upon the project and its application.

In the case of an application submitted by a special purpose unit of local government, where accompanying comments indicate that the unit of general local government having jurisdiction over the area in which the project is to be located has submitted or plans to submit an application for assistance for the same or similar type of project, clearinghouses will assure that appropriate considerations and preferences are accorded the unit of general local government as specified in Section 402 of the Intergovernmental Cooperation Act of 1968.

Applications for Housing Programs

For housing programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), the Veterans Administration, and the Farmers Home Administration of the Department of Agriculture, the developer submits a preliminary application to the funding agency. The application should describe the project in enough detail for evaluation purposes, but lacking detailed construction plans, so that the agency can establish the feasibility and/or eligibility of the proposed project for the type of funding sought. The funding agency will transmit a copy of the initial application to the appropriate State and areawide clearinghouses for review. The clearinghouses will have 30 days to review the application and forward comments to the agency. Processing of applications at the agency will proceed concurrently with the clearinghouses' review. This procedure includes only applications involving new construction or substantial rehabilitation, and will apply to applications for loans, loan guarantees, mortgage insurance or other housing assistance. (Additional units in a substantially completed – partially built up – subdivision are not subject to a funding review. Federal agencies do not finance subdivisions, but evaluate the subdivision plan.)

As an alternative to the above procedure, the developer may submit the application directly to the appropriate clearinghouses for review prior to submitting it to the funding agency to identify any potential difficulties that could cause delay or rejection of the project. This procedure, however, involves 60 days for review. (Some HUD offices have required developers to contact clearinghouses before submitting an application to them.) The extent to which this approach and associated procedures are used should be worked out between the regional offices of the Federal agency and the clearinghouses.

Land/Water Use Programs and Construction in the National Capital Region

For project applications involving land or water use and development or construction in the National Capital Region (the District of Columbia; Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties, Maryland; Arlington, Fairfax, Prince William, and Loudoun Counties and the City of Alexandria, Virginia), a copy of the application is to be sent to the National Capital Planning Commission, the official Federal planning agency for the National Capital Region, in addition to the State and areawide clearinghouses.

3. Clearinghouses notify public agencies.

Upon receipt of the NOI, the clearinghouses have a total of 30 days to react to and gather comments about a project from public agencies.

State clearinghouse will disseminate project notification to the appropriate State and multistate agencies which might have programs affected by the proposed project, including where appropriate, environmental agencies and State agencies responsible for enforcing or furthering the objectives of civil rights laws. The areawide clearinghouse will disseminate project notifications to local government agencies or regional bodies whose interest might be affected by the proposed project, and where appropriate, local agencies with environmental and civil rights responsibilities and, upon request, to the local chief executives for projects proposed within their jurisdictions so that they may coordinate internal reviews by municipal and county agencies.

4. Public agencies review proposed project.

The public agencies will review the proposed project and inform the clearinghouses of their interest, if any. The staff of an areawide clearinghouse also conducts its own review to evaluate the consistency and significance of proposed projects to State, areawide, and local plans and programs for the area.

5.(a) No issues raised by public agencies or clearinghouses.

If no issues are raised, the clearinghouse 'signs off' and notifies the applicant. The applicant has fulfilled the requirements of Part I and may complete the application and submit it to the funding agency unless the clearinghouse specifies that it wishes to review the completed application. If it does, the clearinghouse will have an additional 30 days for review. The applicant then submits the application to the funding agency. The majority of applications do not raise any issues and do not go pass this stage of the review process.

5.(b) Issues raised by public agencies or clearinghouses.

Public agencies and/or the clearinghouses may find that a project 1) is not consistent with area planning (duplicates or conflicts with existing programs), 2) would be minimally effective, 3) would adversely affect the environment, 4) would not meet civil rights requirements, etc. These issues will be resolved in conferences held with the applicant.

Although areawide review procedures vary widely, many clearinghouses have project review committees and/or boards (usually consisting of local elected officials) that will become involved in formal review of the application, after initial staff reviews have been made and issues identified. The project review committee will consider the application and make its recommendations, the board then considers the reviews and adopts the official position of the clearinghouse on the applications at regularly scheduled meetings. The meetings are often open to the public and may be attended by the applicant (clearinghouse procedures will govern).

6. Clearinghouse arranges conference with applicant.

The clearinghouse will arrange conference as necessary with the applicant within 30 days of NOI to apply for assistance. Conferences may be held between the applicant, concerned public agencies, and the clearinghouses staff to 1) explore the project in greater detail, 2) strengthen the project, 3) identify possible conflicts, differences or mutuality of interest, or 4) resolve conflicts. If there is continued interest by the public agencies, the applicant, the clearinghouse, and the agencies may cooperate in developing an application.

7.(a) Conflicts resolved.

When conflicts are resolved and the clearinghouse is satisfied with the application, the clearinghouse 'signs off' and the applicant is notified. The clearinghouse may request review of the final application to make sure it reflects any changes in the project that may have been negotiated.

7.(b) Conflicts cannot be resolved.

When the parties involved agree that conflicts or differences concerning the proposed project cannot be resolved, the clearinghouse notifies the applicant that it will supply comments to that effect which must accompany the final application.

8. The clearinghouse requests the applicant to submit a completed application for final review. During the second 30-day review period, the clearinghouses and interested public agencies prepare comments on the proposal.

9. Clearinghouse has 30 days to submit formal comments to applicant.

10. Applicant submits application to the funding agency along with all clearinghouse comments and a statement that those comments were considered. Comments generated by the review process may be both positive and negative; thus, the applicant may choose to include a rebuttal to negative comments.

11. The Federal funding agency.

The Federal funding agency considers the application and the comments from the clearinghouses and public agencies and informs the applicant and the clearinghouse of any major action (awards, rejections, deferrals, withdrawals, returns for amendments) taken on the application within seven working days.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PROPOSAL WRITING AND FOLLOWING GRANT APPLICATION PROCEDURES

I. INTRODUCTION

This section is designed to assist persons and institutions seeking a grant from a Federal assistance program.

The ideas and suggestions in this section are not all-inclusive. They are intended as a general guide. The material applies to most assistance proposals. Applicants should remember that the basic requirements, application forms, information and procedures vary with the Federal agency making the grant award.

The legislative intent and the administrative guidelines of Federal programs (the Authorization section of the Catalog program description) are useful as a starting point in considering if and how a proposal matches the needs of the Federal granting agency. The remaining sections of the Catalog program description further define features of the Federal program.

A telephone call or a letter to the Federal agency contact person (the Information Contacts section of the Catalog program description) can provide invaluable help in the beginning stages of proposal development. The potential applicant should consult the program's information contact person before developing a proposal to determine whether an application should be made, if there is money available, applicable deadlines, and the process used by the agency in accepting applications. It is important to identify any priorities the Federal agency considers significant. Agencies often prepare guidelines for specific programs to assist applicants in proposal development. These guidelines should be requested by the applicant.

Individuals without prior grant writing experience may find it useful to attend a grantsmanship workshop. A workshop can amplify the basic information presented here. Applicants requiring additional readings on grantsmanship and proposal development should consult the references listed at the end of this section and other library resources.

II. INITIAL PROPOSAL DEVELOPMENT

A. The Concept Paper

After outlining the idea for a proposal, it is useful to develop a concept paper (preliminary proposal) perhaps one or two pages in length. The paper should attempt, at a minimum, to outline proposed goals, rationale, population to be served, estimate of cost, and expected program achievements. The author periodically should revise the paper as ideas about the proposal or grant requirements of the Federal program change. The paper should be distributed to interested persons and agencies in the community. They can be helpful by providing both review and comment on the proposal contents. Select someone who knows and someone who does not know about the subject matter of the paper. This procedure will serve to provide at least two perspectives on the contents; first, a substantive review of the material, and, second, insight into the clarity of the writing style and gramatical accuracy. Further, a review by someone who has submitted a proposal to the funding source in the past will yield information regarding experience with the agency's proposal preferences. The concept paper may be used later for both clearinghouse review (Notification of Intent), and if necessary, for the proposal summary page of the application which is usually one of the most important pages in the grant package. (Refer to the application kit for details on the development of the proposal summary page.) When developing an idea for a proposal it is important to determine if the idea has been or is now being considered in the applicant's locality or State. A careful check should be made with legislators and area government agencies and related public and private agencies which may have (or have had) grant awards or contracts to do similar work. If a similar program exists (or has existed in the past), the applicant may need to reconsider submitting the proposed project particularly if duplication of effort is perceived. Provided significant differences can be established between the existing and proposed project it may be unwise to pursue Federal assistance. The applicant must strive to select a 'fundable' project which can be supported in view of the local need. Alternatives, in the absence of Federal support, should be pointed out. The influence of the project both during and after the project period should be explained. The consequences of the project as a result of funding should be highlighted.

B. Community Support

Community support for most proposals is essential. Once an outline or concept paper has been developed, look for individuals or groups representing academic, political, professional and lay organizations who may be willing to support the proposal in writing. The type and caliber of community support is critical in the initial and subsequent review phases. Numerous letters of support can be persuasive to a grantor agency. Do not overlook support from local government agencies and public officials. Letters of endorsement detailing exact areas of project sanction and commitment are often requested as part of a proposal to a Federal agency. Several months may be required to develop letters of endorsement since something of value (e.g., buildings, staff, services) is sometimes negotiated between the parties involved. Many agencies require, in writing, affiliation agreements (a mutual agreement to share services between agencies) and building space commitments prior to either grant approval or award. A useful method of generating community support may be to hold meetings with the top decision makers in the community who would be concerned with the subject matter of the proposal. The forum for discussion may include a query into the merits of the proposal, development of a contract of support for the proposal, to generate data in support of the proposal, or development of a strategy to create proposal support from a large number of community groups.

C. Identification of a Funding Resource

A chart is provided in the Introduction (see, How to Use the Catalog) to guide users through Catalog sections and retrieve all pertinent program information available in the Catalog. For new Catalog users this chart may be consulted first for an orientation to the suggested method for identifying Federal financial assistance in the Catalog. A review of the Objectives and Uses and Use Restrictions sections of the Catalog program description can point out which programs might provide funding for an idea. Do not overlook the related programs as potential resources. Both the applicant and the grantor agency should have the same interests, intentions and needs if a proposal is to be considered an acceptable candidate for funding. Once a potential grantor agency is identified, call the contact person/number identified in Information Contacts and ask for a grant application kit. Later get to know some of the grantor agency personnel. Ask for suggestions, criticisms and advice about the proposed project. In many cases the more agency personnel know about the proposal the better the chance of support and of an eventual favorable decision. Sometimes it is useful to send the concept paper to a specific agency official in a separate cover letter, and ask for review and comment at the earliest possible convenience. Always check with the Federal agency to determine its preference if this approach is under consideration. If the review is unfavorable and differences cannot be resolved, ask the examining agency (official) to suggest another department or agency which may be interested in the proposal. A personal visit to the agency's regional office or headquarters is also important. A visit not only establishes face to face contact, but also may bring out some essential details about the proposal or help secure literature and references from the agency's library or clearinghouse. At the outset, applicants whose proposals are subject to OMB Circular No. A-95, Part I, are reminded that contact with Federal agency officials prior to project clearance does not circumvent the A-95 process. Such communication should occur only when specific advice is sought or clarification is required about the contents of the proposal, regulations and/or legislation. Applicants should be aware of and comply with OMB Circular No. A-95 requirements when applicable (see Catalog Introduction).

It may be useful to consider consulting the State Central Information Reception Agency (SCIRA) to learn the types and dollar amounts of programs approved or rejected in the applicant's State. This organization is coordinated through the Governor's office in each State. Federal agencies are required to report funding information as funds are approved, increased or decreased among projects within a given State depending on the type of required reporting (see, Treasury Circular 1082 in the Catalog Introduction). Also, consider reviewing the Federal Budget for the current and budget fiscal years to determine proposed dollar amounts for particular budget functions.

The applicant should carefully study the eligibility requirements for each Federal program under consideration (see the Applicant Eligibility section of the Catalog program description). The applicant may learn he or she is required to provide services otherwise unintended such as a service to particular client groups, or involvement of specific institutions. It may necessitate, in some way, the modification of the original concept in order for the project to be eligible for funding. Questions about eligibility should be discussed with the program officer of the Federal program of interest.

Deadlines for submitting applications are often unnegotiable. They are usually associated with strict timetables for agency review. Some programs have more than one application deadline during the fiscal year. Applicants should plan proposal development around the established deadlines.

The timing used by the applicant in implementing Part II Section A, B and C above depends upon the stage of development of each section. The applicant should carefully balance the knowledge and understanding of each part prior to determining the first step and before proceeding to the formal development of the proposal.

III. WRITING AND DEVELOPING A PROPOSAL

A. Gathering Applicant Organizational Data

The applicant should gather data about its organization from all available sources. Most proposals require a description of an applicant's organization to describe its past and present operations. Some features to consider are:

1. A brief biography of board members and/or key staff; and
2. The organization's goals, philosophy, track record with other grantors and any success stories.

The data should be relevant to the goals of the Federal grantor agency and should establish the applicant's credibility.

B. Problem Statement Development

One of the key elements of a proposal is a clear, concise and well-supported statement of the problem to be addressed. The best way to collect information about the problem is to conduct and document both a formal and informal needs assessment for a program in the target or service area. There is a considerable body of literature on the exact assessment techniques to be used. Any local, regional or State government planning office or local university offering course work in planning and evaluation techniques should be able to provide excellent background references. Types of data that may be collected include: historical, geographic, quantifiable, factual, statistical, unobstrusive and philosophical information as well as studies completed by colleges, and literature searches from a public or university library. Local colleges or universities which have a department or section related to the proposal topic may help determine if there is interest in developing a student or faculty project to conduct a needs assessment. It may be helpful to include examples of the findings for highlight in the proposal. The information provided should be both factual and directly related to the problem addressed by the proposal. Areas to document are:

1. The purpose for developing the proposal;
2. The beneficiaries, who they are and how they will benefit;
3. The social and economic costs to be affected;
4. The nature of the problem (provide as much hard evidence as possible);
5. How the applicant organization came to realize the problem exists, and what is currently being done about the problem.
6. The alternatives when the funding is over. Explain what will happen to the project and the implications;
7. Most important, the specific manner through which problems might be solved. Review the resources needed, how they will be used and to what end.

IV. ACT OF WRITING

A. Preorganization

Prior to any formal development of a proposal the applicant should first complete the task of accumulating information, and then begin writing the proposal. The applicant should also have the grant application kit in hand.

One of the first steps in the development of an application is to identify a coordinating person and have this person thoroughly review the application kit. This task is best performed by the person with the major responsibility for the coordination of the proposal development tasks and may or may not be the person who knows the most about the proposal subject area. These are often two different persons. Make an outline of the forms, copy each one and put the originals in a secure file. Use these copies only when ready to type the final draft. Then substitute the filed copies in the application kit. It may be useful to develop a milestone chart (a type of schedule which charts significant events in the development of a proposal over time) to address and identify the implementation dates of the following:

1. Formatting the available information not requiring additional development;
2. Gathering data necessary for development of the proposal and where to get it;
3. Who and when staff will be available to assist with the project;
4. Item—by—item development to the first draft;
5. Schedule for the completion of the second and final drafts to be inspected by the coordinator.

Whenever steps in the milestone chart are delayed it is advisable to immediately negotiate the earliest possible new deadline with the affected parties. Care should be exercised to guarantee that the newly selected date does not throw off the entire project schedule. Most grant proposals will need to be copied four times or more. The original and copies will go to to the Federal grantor agency's program and/or grant office. Other copies may go to to single State agencies, regional and local government officials and board members (if any). If the copying is done internally it may be wise to identify a backup copy machine is case of mechanical failure. This may be critical when working against strict deadlines. Typist should be notified and scheduled in advance if possible. Prepare to commit enough financial resources to producing a proposal. It is difficult to gauge how much money, material and personnel will be needed, but some considerations are: person power (writers, typist, clerks, researchers, statisticians, consultants, etc.), supplies (typewriter, paper, copy machine, postage, binders, pencils and pens, correction fluid, types of stylus apparatus for charts, etc.), office space, a telephone and office equipment.

B. Getting Organized to Write the Proposal

Throughout the proposal writing stage keep a notebook handy to write down ideas. Periodically, try to connect ideas by reviewing the notebook. Never throw away written ideas during the grant writing stage. Maintain a file labeled 'Ideas' or by some other convenient title and review the ideas from time to time. The file should be easily accessible. The gathering of documents such as articles of incorporation, tax exemption certificates, bylaws, etc., should be completed, if possible, before the writing begins.

C. A Note on Special Technical Services

States and political subdivisions can obtain technical information services from Federal agencies when preparing proposals. A written request from the chief executive officer (governor, mayor or county executive) is required. Services are provided according to the Federal agency's special capabilities, mission and authorization by law. Assistance may include: statistical or other studies and compilations, development projects, technical tests and evaluations, technical information, training activities, surveys, reports and documents. All services must relate to either current or future needs of the Federal Government. Some form of proof is required to ensure that these services can be procured reasonably and expeditiously by the requesting agency through ordinary business channels. Federal agencies may require considerable time in supplying information. Consider such possible time lags when requesting assistance.

The following information (Sections D, E, F and Parts V and VI) is generally adaptable to all proposals, and will test both creativity and resourcefulness of the applicant.

D. Developing Program Objectives

Program objectives refer to specific activities in a proposal. It is necessary to identify all objectives related to the goals to be reached, and the methods to be employed to achieve the stated objectives. Consider quantities or things measurable and refer to a problem statement and the outcome of proposed activities when developing a well stated objective. The figures used should be verifiable. Remember, if the proposal is funded, the stated objectives will probably be used to evaluate program progress, so be realistic. There is literature available to help identify and write program objectives.

E. Writing the Solution — A Program Design

The program design refers to how the project is expected to work and solve the stated problem. Sketch out the following:

1. The activities to occur along with the related resources and staff needed to operate the project (inputs).

2. A flow chart of the organizational features of the project. Describe how the parts interrelate, where personnel will be needed and what they are expected to do. Identify the kinds of facilities, transportation and support services required (throughputs).

3. Explain what will be achieved through 1 and 2 above (outputs); i.e., plan for measurable results. Project staff may be required to produce evidence of program performance through an examination of stated objectives during either a site visit by the Federal grantor agency and or grant reviews which may involve peer review committees.

4. It may be useful to devise a diagram of the program design. For example, draw a three column block. Each column is headed by one of the parts (inputs, throughputs and outputs), and on the left (next to the first column) specific program features should be indentified (i.e., implementation, staffing, procurement, systems development, etc.). In the grid specify something about the program design, for example, assume the first column is labeled inputs and the first row is labeled staff. On the grid one might specify under inputs five nurses to operate a child care unit. The throughput might be to maintain charts, counsel the children, set up daily routine, etc., and outputs might be to discharge 25 healthy children per week. This type of procedure will help to conceptualize both the scope and detail of the project.

5. Wherever possible, justify in the narrative the course of action taken. The most economical method should be used that does not compromise or sacrifice project quality. The financial expenses associated with performance of the project will later become points of negotiation with the Federal program staff. If everything is not carefully justified in writing in the proposal, after negotiation with the Federal grantor agencies, the approved project may resemble less of the original concept. Carefully consider the pressures of the proposed implementation, that is, the time and money needed to acquire each part of the plan. A Program Evaluation and Review Technique (PERT) chart could be useful and supportive in justifying some proposals.

6. Highlight the innovative features of the proposal which could be considered distinct from other proposals under consideration.

6. Whenever possible use appendices to provide details, supplementary data, references, and information requiring indepth analysis. These types of data, although supportive of the proposal, if included in the body of the design, could detract from its readability. Appendices provide the proposal reader with immediate access to details if and when clarification of an idea, sequence or conclusion is required. Time tables, work plans, schedules, activi- ties, metodologies, legal papers, personal vitae, letters of support, endorsements, etc. are examples of appendices.

F. Evaluating the Program

Most Federal agencies now require some form of program evaluation among grantees. The requirements of the proposed project should be explored carefully. Evaluations may be conducted by an internal staff member, an evaluation firm or both. The applicant should state the amount of time needed to evaluate, how the feedback will be distributed among the proposed staff, and a schedule for review and comment for this type of communication. Evaluation designs may start at the beginning, middle or end of a project, but the applicant should specify a start-up time. It is practical to submit an evaluation design at the start of a project for two reasons:

1. Convincing evaluations require the collection of appropriate data before and during program operations; and,

2. If the evaluation design cannot be prepared at the outset then a critical review of the program design may be advisable.

Even if the evaluation design has to be revised as the project progresses, it is much easier and cheaper to modify a good design. If the problem is not well defined and carefully analyzed for cause/effect relationships then a good evaluation design may be difficult to achieve. Sometimes a pilot study is needed to begin the identification of facts and relationships. Often a thorough literature search may be sufficient.

Evaluation requires both coordination and agreement among program decision makers (if known). Above all, the Federal grantor agency's requirements should be highlighted in the evaluation design. Also, Federal grantor agencies may require specific evaluation techniques such as designated data formats (an existing information collection system) or they may offer financial inducements for voluntary participation in a national evaluation study. The applicant should ask specifically about these points. Also, consult the Criteria For Funding Proposals section of the Catalog program description to determine the exact evaluation methods to be required for the program if funded.

V. BUDGET FORMULATION

A. Planning the Budget

Funding levels in Federal assistance programs change yearly. It is useful to review the appropriations over the past several years to try to project future funding levels (see Financial Information section of the Catalog program description).

However, it is safer to never anticipate that the income from the grant will be the sole support for the project. This consideration should be given to the overall budget requirements, and in particular, to budget line items most subject to inflationary pressures. Restraint is important in determining inflationary cost projections (avoid padding budget line items), but attempt to anticipate possible future increases. Some vulnerable budget areas are: utilities, rental of buildings and equipment, salary increases, food, telephones, insurance and tranportation. Budget adjustments are sometimes made after the grant award, but this can be a lengthy process. Be certain that implementation, continuation and phasedown costs can be met. Consider costs associated with leases, evaluation systems, hard/soft match requirements, audits, development, implementation and maintenance of information systems and accounting systems and other long-term financial commitments.

A well prepared budget justifies all expenses and is consistent with the proposal narrative. Some areas in need of an evaluation for consistency are: the salaries in the proposal in relation to those of the applicant organization should be similar; if new staff are being hired additional space and equipment should be considered, if necessary; if the budget calls for an equipment purchase it should be the type allowed by the grantor agency; if additional space is rented the increase in insurance should be supported; if an indirect cost rate applies to the proposal the division between direct and indirect costs should not be in conflict, and the aggregate budget totals should refer directly to the approved formula; if matching costs are required the contributions to the matching fund should be taken out of the budget unless otherwise specified in the application instructions.

It is very important to become familiar with Government-wide circular requirements. The Catalog identifies in the program description section the particular circulars applicable to a Federal program, and summarizes circular requirements in Appendix I. The applicant should thoroughly review the appropriate circulars since they are essential in determining items such as cost principles and conforming with Government guidelines for Federal domestic assistance.

VI. REVIEW

A. Criticism

At some point, perhaps after the first or second draft is completed, seek out a neutral third party to review the proposal working draft for continuity, clarity and reasoning. Ask for constructive criticism at this point, rather than wait for the Federal grantor agency to volunteer this information during the review cycle. For example, has the writer made unsupported assumptions or used jargon or excessive language in the proposal?

B. Signature

Most proposals are made to institutions rather than individuals. Often signatures of chief administrative officials is required. Check to make sure they are included in the proposal where appropriate.

C. Neatness

Proposals should be typed, collated, copied and packaged correctly and neatly(according to agency instructions, if any). Each package should be inspected to ensure uniformity from cover to cover. Binding may require either clamps or hard covers. Check with the Federal agency to determine its preference. A neat, organized and attractive proposal package can leave a positive impression with the reader about the proposal contents.

C. Mailing

A cover letter should always accompany a proposal. Standard U.S. Postal Service requirements apply unless otherwise indicated by the Federal agency. Make sure there is enough time for the proposals to reach their destinations. Otherwise, special arrangements may be necessary. Always coordinate such arrangements with the Federal grantor agency project office (the agency which will ultimately have the responsibility for the project), the grant office (the agency which will coordinate the grant review) and the contract office if necessary (the agency responsible for disbursement, grant award notices, etc.).

VII. ADDITIONAL SOURCES OF INFORMATION

Below are resources for more detail about grants and grantwriting. There are several very good private resources available which can be identified by consulting a public library.

A. Research Tools

THE FEDERAL REGISTER

The Federal Register, published daily, is the medium for making available to the public Federal agency regulations and other legal documents of the Executive Branch. These documents cover a wide range of Government activities. Here, Government requirements are published which involve environmental protection, consumer product safety, food and drug standards, occupational health and safety, and many more areas of concern to the public.

Perhaps more importantly, the Federal Register includes proposed changes in regulated areas. Each proposed change published carries an invitation for any citizen or group to participate in the consideration of the proposed regulation through the submission of written data, views, or arguments, and sometimes by oral presentations. Through the publication of proposed rules and notices of public meetings, citizens are given the opportunity to be informed about and participate in the workings of their Government.

The Federal Register Index is based on a consolidation of entries appearing in the issues of the Federal Register together with broad references. It is published monthly and is cumulated for 12 months. All Federal Register publications are available for purchase from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402.

THE CODE OF FEDERAL REGULATIONS

The Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) is a codification of the general and permanent rules published in the Federal Register by executive departments and agencies of the Federal Government. It includes all statutory regulations of Federal agencies, and is divided into 50 titles which represent broad subject areas of Federal regulations (e.g., Housing and Urban Development, Public Health, Public Welfare, or Transportation). Each title is divided into chapters which usually bear the name of the issuing agency. Each chapter is further subdivided into parts covering specific regulatory areas. The number preceding the CFR citation is the title or volume number. The CFR is kept up-to-date by the individual issues of the Federal Register, these two publications must be used together to determine the latest version of any given rule. Individual volumes of the CFR are revised at least once each calendar year and issued on a staggered quarterly basis. The CFR thus serves as a convenient reference for the citizen desiring a comprehensive source for general and permanent Federal regulations.

A General index to the entire Code of Federal Regulations, the CFR Index, is revised as of July 1 each year. The numerical Finding Aids, a cumulative list of CFR Sections affected is publised monthly and is cumulated for 12 months, keyed to the revision dates of the various CFR volumes.

The Federal Register and the Code of Federal Regulations are available in Federal depository libraries and most major libraries or Federal bookstores. Individual copies may be purchased from the Government Printing Office.

THE FEDERAL BUDGET

The following four budget documents are briefly described below: The Budget of the U.S. Government, the Budget Appendix, The Budget in Brief, and the Special Analyses of the Budget.

The Budget provides information on the President's budget proposals, ongoing programs, the budget system and summary tables on the budget. For program identification, the last three digits of the identification code in the Financial Information section of the program description in the Catalog is the functional code. The codes and functions are contained in the back section of the Budget (Budget Outlays by Function).

The Appendix provides detailed information on Federal programs, and identifies specific amounts (as shown in the budget) for each existing or proposed program. Supplemental proposals and amendments for the current year are also identified.

The Budget in Brief is designed for use by the general public. This document is a less technical overview of the budget, and provides graphic displays, a summary and historical tables on the Federal budget.

The Special Analyses, Budget of the U.S. Government contains analyses that are designed to highlight specific program areas or provide other significant presentations of Federal budget data.

The budget documents are available for purchase from the Government Printing Office.

STATE CENTRAL INFORMATION RECEPTION AGENCIES

A State Central Information Reception Agency (SCIRA) is an office or unit of State government designated by the Governor to receive notification of grant awards issued under the provisions of Treasury Circular 1082. Federal agencies are required to notify the appropriate SCIRA in each State of Federal financial assistance awarded and subsequent related transactions including changes in the value or duration of a grant. For basic reporting (grants awarded to States or political subdivisions), Federal agencies submit a Report of Federal Action to the appropriate SCIRA using SF 424. Supplemental reporting (all other Federal assistance to any recipient) is submitted to the SCIRA using individual agency procedures. (See Appendix I of the Catalog for programs designated as basic or supplemental.) The SCIRA in each State is set up primarily to serve the Governor and the legislature. The extent to which it is equipped to serve others such as local governments or the general public varies from State to State.

THE LEGISLATIVE PROCESS AND EXECUTIVE ACTION REGARDING FEDERAL PROGRAMS

I. INTRODUCTION

The authorizing legislation for a Federal program may originate through one or more of the following: a public interest group, a congresswoman, a congressman, a senator, the President, a Federal agency, a private citizen, and so on. Legislation can be introduced only in either the Senate or the House of Representatives. Before a program can become a fully funded and operational reality it must successfully pass through the legislative process. The BILL is the principal mechanism by which legislation is introduced in the Legislative Branch. Bills may be drafted for general, special, public or private purposes. They are prefixed with 'HR' in the House, 'S' in the Senate, and are followed by a number which is in sequence of the order of introduction. Each bill must pass both houses of the Congress in identical form before it can be presented to the President. Most bills never successfully negotiate the legislative process. In fact, recent history indicates that out of the thousands of bills presented in each Congress roughly 800 to 900 are signed into law.

The description below will provide some insight into the process of creating and maintaining a Federal program from a legislative perspective. The end of the list will present additional sources for indepth study of the vast number of variations and exceptions to this process. Also, the material can be used to identify resources for the study of the legislative history behind a Federal program. This type of information may be helpful when preparing a grant application to a Federal program. Here, the effort will be only to present a general overview of the process.

II. LEGISLATIVE OVERVIEW

A. Drafting and Submitting Proposed Legislation

Before a bill is introduced it must first be properly drafted. Proposed legislation is usually drafted by professional congressional staff well trained in that art. Their task is to prepare bills for presentation to the Congress with the appropriate legislative language and format. Sometimes the legislative initiative will commence in the Executive Branch where drafting may occur. Regardless of the point of origin, a potential sponsor must be identified from among the 535 members of the Congress. Upon identification of a sponsor, COMMITTEE PRINTS are prepared as a draft of a bill (a Federal program in this case), public hearings may be conducted (however, they are almost always conducted after a bill is introduced) and research may be done all before the bill is introduced and first recorded in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. This document contains the proceedings of the House and the Senate, and is used to express the bill's intent. Soon thereafter the action is announced in press releases, newsletters, trade journals and newspapers, etc.

Once introduced, those interested in following the progress of a a bill may want to refer to the following publications: THE CONGRESSIONAL DIGEST, THE DIGEST OF PUBLIC GENERAL BILLS, THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, and the many private sector references concerned with the actions of the Congress (contact the state or local public library for details).

A bill originating in either House (or chamber) will tend to undergo roughly the same procedures, although not in the same sequence. For example, the Calendar of Business in the Senate relates directly to the order of business while in the House of Representatives the House Calendar does not. There is a system of rules and privileges which drives the order of business as reflected in the House Calendar. The example below assumes a bill (to create a Federal program) originated in the Senate.

B. Referral and Committee Consideration

The bill will be referred by the Presiding Officer of the Senate to the appropriate standing committee with jurisdiction over the subject matter of the bill. A committee may combine similar bills adding the 'best' features of each. Each bill will be entered on the committee's Calendar of Business.

This is the point in the legislative process when bills are most closely scrutinized by either chamber of the Congress. During the committee process bills are often 'killed', that is, a committee has failed to act on a bill.

A committee may refer its pending bills to any of its subcommittees for study and report. There may be hearings on controversial or major legislation before the final form is drafted and reported to the Senate. Recommendations of the Executive Branch agencies in conjunction with OMB are sought by the committees, but these views need not be accepted. The Full Committee may report the bill favorably, adversely, with or without amendments or it may report nothing. The original committee referral may provide for joint referral (that is, simultaneous referral to more than one committee) or sequential referrals. The 'mark up' is the process by which a committee revises the language of sections of a bill. Extensive 'mark up' usually results in the compiling of a new 'Clean Bill' by the committee chairman. The new bill is assigned a number, and sent to the floor for consideration. Otherwise, the committee chairman usually reports the bill which is then placed on the Senate Calendar of Business (the Senate's only calendar for legislative matters). A COMMITTEE REPORT is distributed for review by the Senators.

C. Senate Consideration of the Bill

Usually, the bills are passed by a call of the Calendar, a motion or a unanimous consent procedure. Bills may be opened for debate which is limited to five minutes for each Senator. Normally the participating members of the Senate will present amendments to the bills. There are numerous special procedures which serve to limit debate, control the amendatory process, etc. Once the committee and floor amendments have been considered, the bill is engrossed (passed) and the amendatory process ends. Most bills are passed by voice vote in the Senate. Once the amendments are accepted, a vote is taken on final passage. If passed it is sent to the House of Representatives. The CONGRESSIONAL RECORD will contain these proceedings. Technically, after a bill is passed by one of the chambers it becomes an Act. However, it will be referred to as a bill, and it does not yet have the effect of a law. If a bill contains a motion to reconsider a Senate vote the bill cannot be sent to the House.

D. Agreement of the House

The bill is introduced in the House and the above process begins again. There will be committee and subcommittee referrals, debate and voting, etc. If no amendments are offered the bill will probably pass. If not, the bill may be referred again to the originating committee. The House uses five legislative calendars. The Union Calendar contains bills which raise revenue. It also reflects appropriation bills. Other calendars are the Consent Calendar, the Discharge Calendar, the House Calendar and the Private Calendar. The Calendars of the United States House of Representatives and History of Legislation contain the cumulation of these five calendars. When a bill passes both chambers it is ready for referral to the White House.

Throughout this process bills are designated in accordance with the type of action taken. The most common bill is 'H.R.', House of Representatives or 'S.', Senate. Resolutions are far less frequent. Joint resolutions (passed in both chambers in identical form) are designated 'S.J. Res.' in the Senate and 'H.J. Res.' in the House. Concurrent resolutions (passed by either chamber, neither a law nor signed by the President) are used to create a joint committee or to express the sense of the Congress. These resolutions do not become law. They are designated 'S.Con.Res.' in the Senate and 'H.Con.Res.' in the House. They must be passed by both chambers to become effective. A House or Senate resolution, designated 'H.Res.' or 'S.Res.', has the force of the House passing it and is used to express the sense of that body. The action of either chamber is all that is necessary to bring about action for a variety of purposes, usually relating to internal administration of the House. The House may amend the Senate bill. The amendments must be considered by the Senate if this happens. The procedure is accomplished by one or more conferences which must be requested and must be agreed to by the other chamber. The bill dies if there is no agreement between the chambers. The goal is to achieve concurrence with the House, and to produce bills in identical form. There may be a number of messages transmitted between the two chambers in the form of proposed amendments. Usually the second chamber (here, the House of Representatives) makes only minor changes. Bills can die in conference even when approved by its sponsoring chamber. This is the result when there is the lack of agreement on a disputed amendment. CONFERENCE REPORTS contain the statements and the amendments of each chamber. When both chambers reach complete agreement the bill is enrolled (printed in final form). Finally, both the Speaker of the House and the Vice President of the United States (also President of the Senate) sign the bill before presentment to the President of the United States. Readers interested in detail about the process of consideration and referral in both chambers should review literature on debating, voting and conference procedures.

E. Referral of the Bill to the President

At this point, the President has 10 days, excluding Sundays, to act on the bill, and four options for action. The President may sign the bill within 10 days and it becomes law. The President may veto the bill within 10 days and return it to the originating chamber with objections (a veto message). The President may take no action in 10 days, and the bill becomes a law. He may pocket veto the bill if Congress has adjourned. If he vetoes the bill the Congress may attempt to override the veto, and, if they are successful, the bill becomes a law and a new Federal program is created. Otherwise, the bill dies. Note that the program is only authorized to exist at this point in the legislative process. It must also have an appropriation act before it can be implemented. Any amendment of a bill signed by the President can only be made by the passage of another bill which must go through the process again.

F. U.S. Code and the Federal Register

Congress delegates the authority for rulemaking to agencies in the Executive Branch. In accordance with the Administrative Procedures Act (5 U.S.C. 55 et. seq.) and the Federal Register Act (44 U.S.C. Ch. 15) the agency must prepare an announcement of the Federal program in the Federal Register. The agency will draft rules which propose implementation of the program. An Advanced Notice of Proposed Rule Making (ANPRM) serves to notify the public of the action taken. A 'slip law' is used to announce the legislation. The 'slip laws' are compiled annually in a volume known as U.S. Statutes At Large. It is further codified in the United States Code. The Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) is published every six years, but annual supplements are issued. The CFR is arranged by subject matter.

G. Authorization and Appropriation

Before a staff can be hired and funds obligated, an appropriation act must be offered. Authorization and appropriation acts must be done separately. One is not necessarily dependent upon the other although usually the authorization act is offered first.

IV. Tracking the Congressional Activity

A. Resources

There are many sources of public information which can be requested from the Government Printing Office to track the progress of a bill through a Congress. Major sources are:

1. Committee Hearings-These are transcripts of the oral and written testimony, statistical data and correspondence. They are available for public inspection in the committee offices. Each report is identified by its date, subject matter and references made to it in other committee hearings.

2. Committee Prints-These are reports of the committee staff research, oversight hearings, drafts of bills, legislative summaries, comparisons with proposed but related legislation, bibliographies and compilations of related laws. Copies are usually available from the Committee for which they were prepared.

3. Comparative Conference Committee Prints-These are the Senate and the House versions of the bill sent to the conference committee. They are unnumbered and copies may be requested from the committee with jurisdiction.

4. Committee Reports-These reports reflect the committee's recommendation to its chamber on the bill. If the committee does not favor the bill a report is not made. The purpose and scope of the bill and the arguments for its passage are outlined. Dissenting, minority, supplemental or additional views and Congressional Budget Office data are also included. The reports are numbered sequentially and designated 'S. Rept.'(Senate Report) or 'H.

Rept.'(House Report). Copies may be requested from the Senate and House Document rooms.

5. Conference Reports-These reports reflect conference committee reconciliation of the differences passed by both chambers. Copies may be requested from the House and Senate Document Rooms.

6. Slip Laws-These documents are published by the General Services Administration, and it is the first publication when a bill becomes a law. A public law number is assigned and the document is added to the United States Statutes at Large. Margin notes, United States Code classifications and approval dates are also indicated. Copies can be requested from the House and Senate Document Rooms.

7. United States Statutes at Large-This is a collection of slip laws produced by the Office of the Federal Register. They reflect the laws enacted during a Congress.

8. Code of Federal Regulations-Fifty titles reside in this document identifying the permanent laws of the United States. Each title (reflecting the subject area) contains one or more chapters (the name of the issuing agency). The chapters are divided into parts (specific subject areas), and each part contains sections (the detail). Most public libraries maintain copies of the United States Codes. It is prepared by the Law Revision Counsel of the House of Representatives.

9. Federal Register-This publication is available to the public through the Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Service. It is published Monday through Friday and contains the text of Presidential proclamations, rules, Executive orders, regulations (proposed and final), and notices. Individual copies may be requested if the date of publication is known. Subscriptions are also available upon request.

10. Congressional Record-This document is a cumulative daily record of the Senate and House floor proceedings. It contains conference reports, extensions of remarks, the numbers and short titles of bills with a statement of their background and purpose, floor speeches and an index, and highlights and summarizes the body of the text in the back of the document.

11. Copies of bills as introduced, reported and passed can be requested from the House or Senate Document Rooms, GPO or through a Congressional District office.

12. Congressional Calender-This doucument is published each day Congress is in session. It lists both House and Senate bills as reported and the history of major steps in the legislative process. It can be used as a reference document when either the public law or bill number is known. A subject index is published on the first day of the week in which Congress is in session.

13. Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents-These documents contain the word-for-word communications of the President including speeches, executive orders, bill signing proceedings, appointments of government staff, public statements and press conferences.

14. Digest of Public General Bills and Resolutions-Lists all public bills introduced in Congress, and is indexed by subject and bill number.

IV. Executive Branch Action

A. Reporting and Implementation

The Catalog contains most of the current Federal domestic assistance programs available through the Federal government with the exception of Federal procurement-type operations. An announcement of a Federal program in the Federal Register does not necessarily indicate the availability of Federal funds unless expressly indicated. A description of the program will appear in the Catalog only if the program is in operation, and is usually preceded by an announcement in the Federal Register. Some of the programs in the Catalog will have funds only for continuation programs, and can make no new awards. This condition is sometimes announced in the Federal Register.

There are Federal programs which exist only on paper. That is, they have been announced as authorized but have no funds to expend (an appropriation has not been enacted) or possibly no Federal agency staff assigned. Agency action usually follows at some time after the Congressional appropriation is made for the program. The agency then submits an announcement to the FEDERAL REGISTER. The first announcement of a Federal program will be in the form of a NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING (NPRM). This notice will announce guidelines for the program (i.e., how to apply, who will benefit, criteria for selecting applicants, the amount of funds available and a notice of public hearings). These data will have been outlined in the Public Law. The name of the program usually is based upon the language in the Public Law. A 60 day comment period exists from the date of publication. The Federal agency will then submit material to the FEDERAL REGISTER in the form of a NOTICE OF FINAL RULE MAKING (NFRM). This notice includes all comments from the public comment period, and any other adjustments made since the NPRM.

At this point the Federal program normally will have been implemented by the Federal agency, and a description of the program will have been submitted to the Office of Management and Budget, Executive Office of the President for inclusion in the Catalog. The program will be included in the next publication cycle, and will be retained with an assigned program number until : 1. it is unable to obligate funds for two consecutive fiscal years, or 2. it undergoes reorganization within an agency, or 3. it is transferred to another agency and the program number is changed to reflect the agency administering the program, or 4. the authorization expires and there is no continuing resolution offered for the program.

B. Program Maintenance

Federal programs are funded through budget authority (BA). BA is authority provided by law to enter into obligations that will result in immediate or future outlays involving Government funds. It is generally provided through appropriation acts, but in some cases the authorizing legislation itself provides BA. BA consists of appropriations, contract authority, authority to borrow and reappropriations. It is available the first day after the appropriation act, or for a past year, or for a future year, and the appropriation act may specify that all or part of an appropriation is to be immediately available. An appropriation act may authorize advance funding in which the BA for the fiscal year in which obligated is increased and reduced in the succeeding fiscal year. An appropriation act may authorize forward funding in which the amount appropriated is unavailable until late in the year, and the BA is reported for the year in which the appropriation is made. BA can be either current or permanent. If it is current, action is required by Congress after transmittal of the budget for the year involved. Permanent BA becomes available without current action by Congress as a result of previously enacted legislation. BA may be definite in which the amount to become available is stated as a specific sum or up to a specific figure or as a portion of the appropriation available under certain conditions (i.e., matching funds availability). Indefinite BA is an amount that is not specifically stated in the appropriations act and includes the authority to borrow and contract authority. The enactment of an appropriation can take several forms. One-year authority indicates that the program is available for obligation only during a specified fiscal year and then expires. Multiple-year authority indicates that obligation of funds can be made for a period in excess of one fiscal year. Very few programs are funded in this way, and the mechanism is not encouraged for use with most Federal programs. No-year authority indicates the Federal program remains available for obligation for an indefinite period of time. Usually the program will expire only when the intended objectives have been reached by the program.

If a Federal program is scheduled to expire the Congress may enact legislation known as a continuing resolution. These are in effect when the regular appropriation for a program has not been enacted by the close of the preceding fiscal year. The Congress provides for the interim financing of current activities through this action. Continuing resolutions allow the obligation of funds by a program at a specified rate pending enactment of a regular appropriation.

Funding of the program may be influenced in other ways. The President may propose a rescission of budget authority previously provided by Congress. Rescissions result from Congressional action to withdraw budget authority that would otherwise become available, or continue to be available. The proposal may be accepted in whole or in part through the passage of a rescission bill by both chambers of Congress.

The Congress has 45 days of continuous session after receipt of the proposal to act. If they take no action the funds must be obligated. The President may also submit a proposal for deferral of budget authority. The proposal may not extend beyond the end of the current fiscal year when the proposal is submitted. The Congress may overturn the proposal by the passage of an impoundment resolution by either chamber. A supplemental appropriation may be requested by a Federal agency. These are funds in addition to those specified in the annual appropriation for the program. Supplemental funds are requested to supply the need for funds which is too urgent to be postponed until enactment of the next regular appropriation act.

The agency action taken to change a Federal program due to legislative action, administrative rule and/or evaluation results is likely to cause some modification to the Code of Federal Regulations. If so, the agency is required to submit a NOTICE to the Federal Register. The notice amends the CFR. This action may include new funding, a loss of funds, revised application deadlines, revised selection criteria, etc. The notice may also include announcements of hearings and investigations, committee meetings, filing of petitions, revocation of licenses, and so on which may be of interest to current and potential applicants. Whenever the Notice concerns a Federal domestic assistance program the agencies are required to include the Catalog program number in the text of the announcement, and whether it is applicable to OMB Circular No. A-95, Part I or Part III.

FEDERAL AGENCY SUMMARY

The following is a summary description of the functions and activities of Federal agencies responsible for administering programs listed in the Catalog. The programs (numbers) are also listed with the administering agency.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Agriculture Research Service (10.001) -- Conducts research to develop new knowledge and technology to ensure an abundance of high quality agricultural commodities and products at reasonable prices to meet the increasing needs of an expanding economy and to provide for the continued improvement in the standard of living of all Americans. It conducts basic, applied, and developmental research on animal and plant production; use and improvement of soil, water, and air; processing, storage, distribution, food safety, and consumer services; and human nutrition research.

Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) (10.025) -- Conducts regulatory and control programs to protect and improve animal and plant health for the benefit of man and the environment.

Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) (10.051-10.068) -- Administers specified commodity and related land use programs designed for voluntary production adjustment, resource protection, and price, market, and farm income stabilization.

Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) (10.153-10.165) -- Administers standardization, grading, voluntary and mandatory inspection, market news, marketing orders, regulatory, and related programs.

Cooperative State Research Service (10.200-10.208) -- Participates in a nationwide system of agricultural research program planning and coordination between the States and the Department of Agriculture to encourage and assist in the establishment and maintenance of cooperation within and among the States and between the States and their Federal research partners. The primary function is to administer the Acts of Congress that authorize Federal appropriations for agricultural research carried on by the State agricultural experiment stations of the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, the District of Columbia, American Samoa, and Micronesia; by approved schools of forestry; the 1980 land-grant institutions and Tuskegee Institute; colleges of veterinary medicine; and other eligible institutions.

Economic Research Service (10.250) -- Economic analysis and research is composed of research on the economic functioning and performance of the food and fiber industry from the farm to the consumer, and analysis of major developments and trends. Specific topics treated include: commodity analysis; farm sector economics; food system research; farm income, productivity, cost of production, and price spreads; food prices; and agricultural and food policies. The activity in international agriculture involves: world demand and supply forecasting; foreign agricultural, economic, and trade policies; and country and region situation and outlook, analysis, and research. The natural resources research covers: landownership and use; energy development impacts; water use and conservation; resource planning; pesticide regulation and management; and water quality and institutions. The rural development program encompasses: demographic research; farm work force and rural labor markets; rural health, education, and housing; State and local government services to rural communities; and rural credit.

Agricultural Cooperative Service (10.350) -- Serves as the focal point of national activity involving agricultural cooperatives.

DEADLINES INDEX

This index consolidates the previous Deadlines Index which appeared in earlier editions of the Catalog. It is the initial effort to prepare a comprehensive consolidated Deadlines Index in ascending order.

This index lists those programs shown in the Catalog which have application deadlines that applicants must adhere to in order to ensure timely consideration of their activities. The programs listed following each date or month are those for which applications must be received by the Federal agency administering the program by the date indicated. Currently funded programs that are listed in the Catalog but are not shown in this index either do not have a deadline or the deadline(s) has not been determined.

The information contained herein was taken from the Deadlines section of the program descriptions. As a potential applicant, contact the agency contact persons for any changes in scheduling or incomplete information. Regarding deadline dates, the agency is always the best source.

The alphabet(s) in parenthesis following the program title, shows the type(s) of assistance available through that program. The alphabet codes with accompanying types of assistance are as follows: A - Formula Grants; B - Project Grants; C - Direct Payments for Specified Use; D - Direct Payments with Unrestricted Use; E - Direct Loans; F - Guaranteed/Insured Loans; G - Insurance; H - Sale, Exchange, or Donation of Property and Goods; I - Use of Property, Facilities, and Equipment; J - Provision of Specialized Services; K - Advisory Services and Counseling; L - Dissemination of Technical Information; M - Training; N - Investigation of Complaints; O - Federal Employment.

OBJECTIVES: To assist farmers, ranchers and aquaculture operators with loans to cover losses resulting from major and/or natural disasters; for annual farm operating expenses; and, for other essential needs necessary to return disaster victims' farming operation(s) to a financially sound basis in order that they will be able to return to private sources of credit as soon as possible.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE: Guaranteed/Insured Loans.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS: The loan may be used to repair, restore, or replace damaged or destroyed farm property (real and chattel) and supplies which were lost or damaged as a direct result of a natural disaster; provide annual production loans for up to three full crop-years following the disaster (except that borrowers indebted for emergency loans on December 15, 1979, the number of subsequent EM annual production loans are limited to a period not to exceed six full calendar years after the disaster) to enable the disaster victims time to recover from their losses and return to conventional credit; under certain conditions, refinance secured and unsecured debts made necessary by the disasters; finance adjustments in the farming, ranching or aquaculture operation(s) determined necessary to restore or maintain applicants on a sound financial basis equivalent to their predisaster potential. The total amount of all loans for all purposes must not exceed the applicants repayment ability. The total of all actual loss loans is based on actual dollar value of production and physical losses, and they will be for: (1) disasters occurring on or after July 1, 1976, and prior to October 1, 1978, at 3 percent interest rate on amounts not to exceed $250,000 for EM loans for actual losses and five percent interest rate on amounts not to exceed $500,000 per disaster; (2) disasters occurring October 1, 1978 through September 30, 1981, all actual loss loans are at five percent interest with a maximum limit of $500,000 per disaster. Applicants who suffered losses from disasters occurring after July 2, 1980, and who can obtain credit elsewhere may receive a loan(s) for actual losses only, at a market rate of interest based on the cost of Government borrowings as established periodically by the Secretary of Agriculture. The combined total of annual production and major adjustment loans cannot exceed $500,000 during fiscal year 1982, (October 1, 1981 thru September 30 1982), regardless of the number of designated disasters, and such loans are prohibited after September 30, 1982 except that borrowers indebted for any EM loan on December 15, 1979, may receive subsequent EM annual production loans in the amount necessary to continue their normal farming operations without regard to the indebtedness ceiling set forth above. Emergency actual loss loans are made in counties (1) named by the Federal Emergency Management Agency as being eligible for Federal assistance under a major disaster or emergency declaration by the President, or (2) in counties designated by the Secretary of Agriculture or (3) when authorized by an FmHA State Director where production and/or physical losses can be readily determined provided 25 or fever farmers are substantially affected.

OBJECTIVES: To assist states in providing nutritious breakfasts for school children, through cash grants and food donations.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE: Formula Grants.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS: Federally appropriated school breakfast program funds are available to reimburse participating public and nonprofit private schools, of high school grade or under, for breakfasts, meeting the nutritional requirements prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture, served to eligible children. Participating schools are reimbursed at rates not less than those shown in the Formula and Matching Requirements Section. The rates of reimbursement are adjusted on an annual basis to reflect changes in the series of food away from home of the Consumer Price Index. For the period through June 30, 1982, the rates of reimbursement are 8.25 cents for all breakfasts, an additional 19.25 cents for each reduced price breakfast, and an additional 48.75 cents for each free breakfast. In cases of severe need, a payment of up to 38.50 cents and 68.50 cents may be made for each breakfast served to children qualifying respectively for a reduced price and a free breakfast. All participating schools must agree to supply free and reduced price meals to eligible children, and to operate the program on a nonprofit basis for all children without regard to race, color, national origin, or the ability to pay.

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS:

Applicant Eligibility: State and U.S. Territory agencies or private schools whose average annual tuition does not exceed $1,500 and residential child care institutions (except Job Corps Center) which are exempt from income tax under the Internal Revenue Code. Schools desiring to participate must agree to operate a nonprofit breakfast program which is available to all children regardless of race, color, creed or national origin.

Beneficiary Eligibility: All children attending schools in which the breakfast program is operating may participate. Breakfast is served free or at a reduced price to children who are determined by local school authorities to be unable to pay the full price. Such determinations are made in accordance with income eligibility guidelines prescribed by the Secretary and cross-reference family income with family size. The Secretary revises these income eligibility guidelines each July 1; the statistical source used in making such revisions is the OMB Nonfarm Income Poverty Guidelines.

Credentials/Documentation: Applicants must furnish evidence of nonprofit status.

APPLICATION AND AWARD PROCESS:

Preapplication Coordination: The application forms as furnished by the State agency or FNS, as applicable, must be used for this program.

Application Procedure: Public schools in all states make application to the State Educational Agency. Appropriate forms may be obtained from this agency. Nonprofit private schools should also apply to the State Educational Agency. In some states, however, the State Educational Agency is prohibited by State statute from disbursing Federal funds to nonprofit private schools. In such instances, the application will be referred to the appropriate Food and Nutrition Service regional office. This program in private schools is subject to the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-110.

Award Procedure: When application is approved, school makes agreement with appropriate agency on a fiscal year basis. Notification of awards must be made to the designated State Central Information Reception Agency in accordance with Treasury Circular 1082.

Deadlines: Federal-State agreement must be signed by October 1.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time: Agreements are effective upon approval of the State Educational Agency or Food and Nutrition Service, regional office where applicable, and are effective until the following September 30.

Appeals: State Educational Agencies or Food and Nutrition Service regional offices, where applicable, are responsible for determining a school's eligibility.

Renewals: Annually as of October 1.

ASSISTANCE CONSIDERATIONS:

Formula and Matching Requirements: Federal funds are made available for breakfast assistance in accordance with Section 4 of the Child Nutrition Act on a performance basis by (1) multiplying the number of all breakfasts served during the fiscal year by a national average payment (NAP), (2) multiplying the number of breakfasts served free to eligible children by a national average payment prescribed by the Secretary for free breakfasts; and multiplying the number of reduced price breakfasts served to eligible children by a NAP prescribed by the Secretary for reduced-priced breakfasts. The amount of Federal funds due the grantee is the sum of the products obtained from these three computations. The statistical factors used in this formula are: (1) the NAP's, and (2) the total number of breakfasts served to eligible children, and (3) the number of such breakfasts served free or at reduced price. The NAP's are prescribed by the Secretary and adjusted each July 1 in accordance with the Consumer Price Index for all Urban Consumers; the source of this adjustment factor is the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The source of the numbers of breakfasts served, including the number served free or at reduced price, is the programmatic reports submitted to FNS and described under "Post Assistance Requirements." This program has maintenance of effort (MOE) requirements. See funding agency for further details.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance: For the period covered by the agreement. Fiscal year basis.

POST ASSISTANCE REQUIREMENTS:

Reports: State Agencies, schools and institutions file monthly reports on program operation to claim for reimbursement.

Audits: Final reports on program operations and cash disbursed to shcools must be received by FNS 150 days after the close of the fiscal year to which they pertain. Programs are subject to biennial audits as required by OMB Circular No. 102, to assure proper utilization of program funds.

All participating schools must agree to supply free and reduced price meals to eligible children.

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS:

Applicant Eligibility: State and U.S. Territory agencies and private schools (whose average annual tuition does not exceed $1,500) and residential child care centers, (except Job Corps Centers) and settlement houses which are exempt from income tax under the Internal Revenue Code, as amended. Schools desiring to participate must agree to operate a nonprofit lunch program which is available to all children regardless of race, color, creed, or national origin.

Application Procedure: Public schools in all states make application to the State Educational Agency. Appropriate forms may be obtained from this agency. Nonprofit private schools should also apply to the State Educational Agency. Range of Approval/Disapproval Time: Agreements are effective upon approval by the State educational agency or FNSRO, where applicable, and are effective until the following September 30.

Appeals: None. State Educational Agencies and FNSRO's, where applicable, are responsible for determining a school's eligibility.

Renewals: Annually as of October 1.

ASSISTANCE CONSIDERATIONS:

Formula and Matching Requirements: The funding formula for the general cash-for-food assistance phase of the program is set forth in Section 4 of the National School Lunch Act, as amended, the formula for special cash assistance is described in Section 11 of the Act. Both phases of the program are funded on a performance basis. For every lunch served during the applicable fiscal year, the State receives a payment from funds made available under Section 4. In addition, the State receives a payment from Section 11 funds for each lunch served to a child eligible for free or reduced-price lunches. The amounts of such per-lunch payments are determined by "National Average Payment" (NAP) factors. The amount due the State under this program is obtained by: (1) multiplying the total number of eligible lunches served during the fiscal year by the Section 4 NAP factor; (2) multiplying the number of free lunches served by the Section 11 NAP factor for free lunches; (3) multiplying the number of lunches served at reduced price by the Section 11 NAP factor for reduced-price lunches; and (4) adding together the three products obtained thereby. The NAP factors are prescribed by the Secretary in accordance with Sections 4 and 11, respectively, of the Act; the numbers of lunches are obtained from programmatic reports submitted to FNS. Section 11 of the Act requires that the NAP factors be adjusted annually according to changes in the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers; the source is the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Beginning with the 1981-82 school year (school year being defined as the period July 1 through June 30), each State must appropriate from State revenues and use for program purposes an amount equal to 30 percent of the Section 4 funds made available to the State in the 1980-81 school year. Also effective for the 1981-1982 school year, commodity only schools are now eligible to receive donated commodities equal in value to the sum of section 6 and section 4, except that up to 5 cents of this amount may be received in cash for processing and handling commodities. Commodity only schools are now eligible for free and reduced price lunches as well.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance: For the period covered by the agreement. Fiscal year basis.

ASSISTANCE CONSIDERATIONS:

Formula and Matching Requirements: Program funds are provided to the States through a Letter of Credit to reimburse institutions for their costs in connection with the food service operations, including administrative expenses. Appropriate rates of reimbursement, multiplied by the number of meals served to enrolled children, represents the basic Program payment that an institution receives for each meal type served. The assigned rates of reimbursement are adjusted annually to reflect changes in the services for food away from home of the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers, published in the Bureau of Labor Statistics periodical entitled Monthly Labor Review. Donated foods or cash in lieu thereof are also made available. Program payments to center programs depend on the number of meals served to enrolled children multiplied by the appropriate rates of reimbursements. These rates are determined by the economic need of the children served. Using the Income poverty Guidelines issued by the Department of Agriculture, the child's economic need is based on a statement of family size and income which determines the childs economic need. The child is placed in one of three categories. Sponsoring organizations of day care homes are reimbursed for food service and administrative cost. The reimbursement for food service is passed on by sponsoring organization to the day care homes under their auspices. Meals served to the provider's own children are reimbursable only if such children are eligible for free or reduced meals. This program has maintenance of effort (MOE) requirements. Consult funding agency for further details.

In addition, the Secretary has discretionary authority to provide funds to States for program improvement and the source is programmatic and fiscal data, FNS. The statistical factor used for eligibility is all State agencies administering supported programs and the source is the Child Nutrition Act of 1966, as amended, section 7. This program has a Maintenance of Effort (MOE) requirement; see funding agency for details.

ASSISTANCE CONSIDERATIONS:

Formula and Matching Requirements: Program funds are provided to the States through a Letter of Credit to reimburse institutions for their costs in connection with the food service operations, including administrative expenses. Appropriate rates of reimbursement, multiplied by the number of meals served to enrolled childern, represent the basic program payment that an institution receives for each meal type served. The assigned rates of reimbursement are adjusted annually to reflect changes in the services for food away from home of the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers, published in the Bureau of Labor Statistics periodical entitled Monthly Labor Review. Donated foods or cash-in-lieu thereof are also made available. Program payments to center programs depend on the number of meals served to enrolled children, multiplied by the appropriate rates of reimbursement. These rates are determined by the economic need of the children served. Using the Income Poverty Guidelines issued by the Department of Agriculture, the child's economic need is based on a statement of family-size and income which determines the child's economic need category. The child is placed in one of three categories. Sponsoring organizations of day care homes are reimbursed for food service and administrative costs. The reimbursement is passed on by sponsoring organizations to day care homes under their auspices. Meals served to the provider's own children are reimbursable only if such children are eligible for free or reduced meals. This program has maintenance of effort (MOE) requirements. Consult funding agency for further details. The statistical factors used in fund allocation are: 1. enrollment in public schools and the source is "statistics of Public Schools," Fall, 1980, NCES; 2. enrollment in private schools and the source is "Digest of Educational Statistics," NCES; 3. enrollment in residential child care institutions and the source is "USDA Annual Report of meal service in schools, Food and Nutrition Service," 1981; and 4. enrollment in nonresidential child care institutions and the source is "Day Care Centers in the U.S.: A National Profile" 1976-1977, Administration for Children, Youth, and Families. The statistical factor for eligibility does not apply to this program. Funds are apportioned based on the latest available enrollment data for schools and institutions in each State multiplied by 50 cents. States may use up to 15 percent of their total grant for up to 50 percent of expenditures for administration. If funds appropriated are not sufficient to meet this formula, the amount granted to each State will be proportionately reduced.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance: Fiscal year basis. Assistance is made available as required through letters of credit.

RELATED PROGRAMS: 10.414, Resource Conservation and Development Loans; 10.902, Soil and Water Conservation.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS: Montana - Rodeo Ranchettes Critical Area Treatment: Severe streambank erosion (up to 50 feet in places) along about 4,000 feet of the Bitterroot River, fronting on an area of existing rural homes and potential homesites, was one problem brought to the attention of sponsors of the Bitterroot RC&D Area. As a result, the Missoula Conservation District and Missoula County Commissioners sponsored a measure to correct the problem. With the stabilization of the critical areas, rural residents can now feel safe and secure. Downstream water quality has been improved, recreation opportunities have been enhanced, and fish and wildlife resources are protected from sedimentation damages. Mississippi - Jonestown Flood Prevention and Drainage (Northwest Mississippi RC&D Area): About 60 homes in the small rural town of Jonestown, Mississippi, (population about 900) have a history of frequent flooding. Due to the protection provided by this measure, none of these homes were flooded during the heavy rainstorms of 1974-1975. Sponsors were Coahoma County Soil and Water Conservation District and Jonestown. Cost-sharing assistance was provided through the Northwest Mississippi RC&D Area. Oregon - Nursery Bridge Diversion and Highline Canal Pipe Drop: This work provides for reliable and efficient delivery of irrigation water to 7,000 acres on 300 farms. The improvement will also prevent erosion, sedimentation, water loss, and drainage problems. Sponsors of the Columbia-Blue Mountain RC&D Area provided cost-sharing funds. West Virginia - Stumpy Bottom Flood Prevention: A 47-acre area near the city of Princeton is now protected. The area contains homes, business, and small industry. Open spaces can now be made attractive and useable as play areas without the problem of pools of stagnant water good only for breeding mosquitoes and as a source of pollution. Because of the protection provided by technical and financial assistance of the Mountain-Dominion RC&D Area, a wood preserving plant, employing 10 men, has been established in this area. South Carolina - Hampton Group Flood Prevention and Drainage: Hard work and good planning have benefited 10 families in the Dabbs Crossroads section of Sumter County. Assistance to these families was provided by the sponsors of the Santee-Wateree RC&D Area, including Sumter County Commissioners and the Sumter County Soil and Water Conservation District. Their homes are now safe from flooding, gardens are again productive, and flooded and muddy roads are no longer a problem.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS: Proposals for measures are judged on relevance of the measure to the RC&D area plan's goals and objectives. Criteria for setting priorities are usually published in the RC&D area plan or are available from the local sponsors of the RC&D area.

10.910 RURAL ABANDONED MINE PROGRAM (RAMP)

FEDERAL AGENCY: SOIL CONSERVATION SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

AUTHORIZATION: Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977, Section 406, Public Law 95-87, 30 U.S.C. 1236, 91 Stat. 460.

OBJECTIVES: To protect people and the environment from the adverse effects of past coal-mining practices and to promote the development of soil and water resources of unreclaimed mined lands.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE: Direct Payments for Specified Use; Advisory Services and Counseling.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS: Cost share funds are available only for conservation practices determined to be needed for the reclamation, conservation, and development of up to 320 acres per owner of rural abandoned coal mine land or lands and waters affected by coal mining activities. Practices must be applied in accordance with a reclamation plan and contract provisions. Practices are limited to those which will provide land stabilization, erosion and sediment control, and development of soil, water (excluding stream channelization), woodland, wildlife, recreation resources and the agricultural productivity of such lands.

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS:

Applicant Eligibility: Individuals, groups or units of government who own or control the surface or water rights of abandoned coal land or lands, and water affected by coal mining practices before August 3, 1977. These areas are not eligible if: (1) there is continuing reclamation responsibility on the part of the mine operator or the State; (2) the lands are in Federal ownerships; and (3) the surface rights are under easement or lease to be remined.

Beneficiary Eligibility: Same as Applicant Eligibility.

Credentials/Documentation: Participants must furnish proof of ownership or management control for the contract period and written consent of the landowner, if not the owner. Participants are responsible for completing an application for assistance that includes statement of financial burden.

APPLICATION AND AWARD PROCESS:

Preapplication Coordination: None.

Application Procedure: Applicant requests program assistance on Form SCS CO-156 through the local office of the Soil Conservation Service or conservation district. Applicant must develop, with the assistance of SCS, a reclamation plan as a basis for program assistance.

Award Procedure: Participants must sign a 5 to 10 year contract based on the reclamation plan to receive cost sharing. Cost payments may be made directly to the applicant or the contractor upon satisfactory completion of identifiable units of work. Approval of contracts is made by the Chief of SCS, State conservationist or contracting officer depending upon dollar amount of contract. Reclamation work contained in RAMP contract may be performed under an SCS awarded contract or by the participant.

Deadlines: SCS is to announce, through local media, dates and variable deadlines for receiving applications.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time: Variable, no specified time. Approval will depend on volume of applications received, available funds and priority assigned by reclamation committee and complexity of the reclamation project.

Appeals: To SCS State conservationist within 30 days after notice of dispute.

Renewals: Eligible applicants may re-apply for program assistance in accordance with program funding priorities. Subject to a 320-acre limitation per owner.

ASSISTANCE CONSIDERATIONS:

Formula and Matching Requirements: Allotments of Rural Abandoned Mine Program funds to SCS State conservationists are to reflect the national program needs; the geographic areas from which funds were derived; the funding priority assigned to applications for program assistance, including benefits expected to be derived; and, the practicability and feasibility of the reclamation work proposed. For 120 acres or less, the Federal cost-share rate for applying land use and conservation treatment may be up to 80 percent depending upon the income producing potential of the land after reclamation. However, this rate may be increased to a level required to obtain participation when the main benefits of reclamation accrue to the public and there is a declaration of financial burden. For acreage in excess of 120 acres up to 320 acres maximum, the cost-share rate is to be reduced proportionately by up to 0.25 percent per acre. The Chief of the Soil Conservation Service may establish specific rates in accordance with the above criteria. Initially, cost-share rates will range from 25 to 100 percent.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance: Contract period is for not less than 5 or more than 10 years.

POST ASSISTANCE REQUIREMENTS:

Reports: SCS and applicant make a status review which includes maintenance of completed items, need for deletion or addition of contract items, and as appropriate, the need to reschedule installation of practices.

Audits: SCS makes periodic, random on-site reviews of the quantity and quality of the application and maintenance of contract items. Program activities are subject to audit by the Office of Inspector General, USDA.

Records: Recipients should retain the reclamation plan contract and subsequent correspondence and transactions because they will be held accountable for its implementation.

A 40 acre site near a small borough presented a constant hazard to life and property. Reclamation consists of shaping and stabilization of eroding and unsightly "refuse" piles; disposal of "red dog" boulders; removal of a hazardous tipple; filling open mine shafts; back filling to reduce height of "highwalls"; removal of acid debris and soil deposition in streams; establishment of diversions, rock and grass waterways; establishing permanent vegetation on the site; and stabilization of streambanks.

OBJECTIVES: To provide trade adjustment assistance to firms and industries adversely affected by increased imports.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE: Direct Loans; Guaranteed/Insured Loans.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS: Firms: Under Chapter 3 of Title II, a firm may petition the International Trade Administration (ITA) of the Department of Commerce for certification as being impacted by import competition within the context of the Trade Act of 1974. Upon certification, the firm is eligible to apply for assistance. ITA approves the proposal by a firm for its economic recovery, and provides assistance to implement the recovery plan. Technical and financial assistance for individual firms may be furnished separately or in combination. Financial assistance may be used for capital equipment, buildings, land, and for working capital. No financial assistance is provided if funds are available from private sources on reasonable terms. Technical assistance, which is provided by ITA, usually through one of 11 Trade Adjustment Assistance Centers (TAACs) throughout the country, may be used to help develop, as well as implement, a firm's recovery proposal. Industries may be considered for trade adjustment technical assistance if they can provide evidence of actual or potential trade-impact among member firms. The industry should include firms which have been certified as trade-impacted under the Trade Act. Technical assistance is provided to trade association or other industry representatives to examine basic problems of industries and help meet the market challenge from imports.

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS:

Applicant Eligibility: A firm must demonstrate that increased imports of articles like or directly competitive with those produced by the firm contributed importantly to declines in sales or production, and to separation or threat of separation of the firm's workers.

Beneficiary Eligibility: Firms certified by the Secretary of Commerce as eligible to apply for adjustment assistance.

Credentials/Documentation: Certified firm must submit an acceptable plan for its economic recovery, including an explanation of the strategy and plan of action the firm intends to employ to adjust to the impact of imports, supported by financial, employment and sales data, a description of assistance needs, and other supporting materials.

APPLICATION AND AWARD PROCESS:

Preapplication Coordination: A certified firm should work closely with its TAAC in petitioning for certification, in diagnosing its problems and developing its recovery plans, and in applying to ITA for implementation assistance. A conference with the staff of the ITA may also be recommended.

Application Procedure: Firms submit a petition for Certification of eligibility to Apply for Trade Adjustment Assistance (Form ITA-840). If certified by ITA, the firm may within 2 years submit an acceptable recovery plan and an application for financial and technical assistance required to implement the plan. An application for financial assistance is submitted using Forms ITA-860 and ITA-861P.

Award Procedure: To be approved, adjustment proposals for certified firms must demonstrate that they: (1) are reasonably calculated materially to contribute to the economic adjustment of the firm; (2) give adequate consideration of the interests of the workers of the firm and (3) demonstrate that the firm is using its own resources for its economic adjustment.

Deadlines: Application for Adjustment Assistance: In the case of firms, acceptable recovery plans must be filed within 2 years of certification of eligibility.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time: For firms: Up to 60 days to determine whether a firm is eligible for certification after acceptable petition is filed. Up to 60 days after application for assistance is accepted for filing.

Appeals: Petitioners may appeal in writing within 60 days to the Assistant Secretary for Trade Development, Department of Commerce, from a denial of certification of eligibility to apply for adjustment assistance.

Renewals: None.

ASSISTANCE CONSIDERATIONS:

Formula and Matching Requirements: A firm will be required to share costs of technical assistance to the extent deemed appropriate by the Secretary of Commerce. In order to obtain financial assistance, a firm must show that required funds are not available from the firm's own resources, and that there is reasonable assurance of repayment of the loan.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance: Assistance is phased according to the requirements of the approved adjustment proposal; loan maturities cannot exceed 25 years.

AUTHORIZATION: Executive Order No. 12049 dated March 27, 1978, authorizes and directs the Secretary of Defense to establish an Economic Adjustment Program to help alleviate serious economic and social impacts that result from changes in Defense activities. The Executive Order designates the heads of 18 Federal Executive agencies as members of the Economic Adjustment Committee (EAC) with responsibility to support, to the extent permitted by law, the economic adjustment activities of the Secretary of Defense. The following agencies are members of the EAC: Departments of Agriculture; Commerce; Defense; Education; Energy; Health and Human Services; Housing and Urban Development; Interior; Labor; Transportation; and Justice; Office of Management and Budget; Council of Economic Advisers; Environmental Protection Agency; General Services Administration; Office of Personnel Management; Small Business Administration; and the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE: Provision of Specialized Services; Advisory Services and Counseling.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS: Economic Adjustment assistance is tailored to meet the unique needs of each impacted community. A typical project involves assistance for assessment of the impact and evaluation of specific needs, the identification of alternative courses of development action, the identification of resource requirements and possible sources and the preparation of a development strategy and action plan. The resources of Federal agencies (technical expertise and assistance programs) are utilized to augment State, local and private-sector resources to develop and implement a consensus plan that is feasible of implementation. Federal agency participation is governed by local requirements and needs for assistance (e.g., DOEd assists on educational projects, DOT on transportation projects, etc.).

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS:

Economic adjustment employment gains have been achieved through the establishment of new manufacturing plants (742), civilian airports (27), vocational-technical schools (29), and local government activities (29). In helping impacted communities meet an immediate need for new jobs, the EAC has also facilitated the organization of community leaders for the development and pursuit of long-term economic objectives (e.g. local economic diversification and new educational facilities which strengthen future economic security). The coordinated federal assistance provided to communities affected by cutbacks has also been utilized to help alleviate the effects of large increases in military activity ("growth impacts").

Special emphasis will be placed on eliminating the spread of indigenous measles in the United States by October 1, 1982. Fifty of the 64 immunization projects conducted surveys to determine the immunization levels of children entering primary school. The national weighted results of immunization levels determined by this assessment for the 1980/1981 school year were 96 percent for measles; 96 percent for DTP, and rubella; 95 percent for polio; and 92 percent for mumps. In addition to achieving these high levels, substantial progress has been made in the reduction of vaccine-preventable diseases. Preliminary data indicate record low numbers of cases were reported during 1981 for measles (3,032), mumps (4,729), rubella (2,060), diphtheria (4), tetanus (60), and polio (6). Only six cases of tetanus and two cases of diphtheria were reported in children under age 15. Preliminary data indicate 1,189 Pertussis cases were reported.

13.282 MENTAL HEALTH NATIONAL RESEARCH SERVICE AWARDS FOR RESEARCH TRAINING

(F31; F32; F34; T32; MARC)

FEDERAL AGENCY: ALCOHOL, DRUG ABUSE, AND MENTAL HEALTH ADMINISTRATION, DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

AUTHORIZATION: Public Health Service Act, Title IV, Section 472; Public Law 78-410 as amended; 42 U.S.C. 2891-1.

OBJECTIVES: An individual National Research Service Award provides support to individuals for predoctoral and postdoctoral research training in specified mental health related areas; and an Institutional National Research Service Grant provides support and enables nonprofit institutions to develop research training opportunities for individuals interested in careers in a particular specified mental health related field. The Minority Access to Research Careers Programs (MARC) are intended to assist institutions with substantial minority enrollment in the training of greater numbers of scientists and teachers in fields related to mental health, alcoholism, and drug abuse. Priority is given to programs which enhance the research skills of clinical investigators, develop minority researchers and to programs which involve field experience in a mental health clincical or service setting.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE: Project Grants.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS: Individual awards are made to fellows seeking predoctoral or postdoctoral support for full-time research training in biomedical/behavioral shortage areas related to mental health. An institutional allowance will be provided, upon request, to the sponsoring institution for each awardee. In addition, any domestic public or nonprofit institution may apply for an institutional research training award in a specified area of research from which a number of stipend awards will be made to individuals selected by the training program director at the institution. Support is available for both pre- and postdoctoral trainees and will include an amount for institutional expenses. Indirect costs may be requested at 8 percent of total direct costs, exclusive of tuition and related fees and expenditures for equipment, or actual indirect costs, whichever is less. In the behavioral sciences, priority is given to support at the postdoctoral level; only limited support is available at the predoctoral level. Short-term training programs in which individuals participate for three months or less and that address special national research training issues are also supported. Stipend levels will be $5,040 (predoctoral) and $13,380 - $18,780 (postdoctoral) dependent upon the number of years of relevant experience. Research training support may not be used for intern or other clinical training. MARC Faculty Fellowships are for selected faculty members of institutions with substantial minority enrollment for advanced research training in specified areas of research related to mental health, alcoholism, and drug abuse. It is intended the fellowship recipients will return to their home institution to teach and conduct research, and to inspire and assist students to prepare for professional and research careers. The amount of the stipend awarded under the faculty fellowship will be commensurate with the salary or remuneration that the fellow would have been entitled to receive from his or her home institution, on the date of acceptance of the fellowship, except in no case shall the stipend exceed $25,000 annually. When an individual award is for approved training involving research at sites other than the sponsoring institution, an allowance may be requested to help support field costs of the research as well as travel. MARC Honors Undergraduate grants are to increase the number of well-prepared students from institutions with substantial minority enrollments who can compete successfully for entry into Ph.D. degree programs in disciplines related to mental health, alcoholism, and drug abuse; and to help develop and strengthen biological, psychological, behavioral, and/or public health sciences curricula and research training opportunities in order to prepare students for research careers related to mental health, alcoholism, and drug abuse. Stipends of $3,900 per year may be requested for each trainee and other related institutional costs may be requested.

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS:

Applicant Eligibility: Support is provided for predoctoral and postdoctoral academic and research training only, in mental health and mental health-related priority areas which are specified by the National Institute of Mental Health and includes biological sciences, behavioral sciences, incidence and prevalence (epidemiology) clinical sciences (etiology, description, diagnosis, and pathogenesis) treatment development, assessment and evaluation, prevention and services research. (See Preapplication Coordination.) For postdoctoral support, individuals with a professional or scientific degree are eligible (M.D., Ph.D., D.D.S., D.O., D.V.M., Sc.D., D. Eng., or equivalent domestic or foreign degree.) Proposed study must result in research training in specified shortage areas, and may offer opportunity to research health scientists, research clinicians, etc. to broaden their scientific background, or to extend their potential for research in health related-areas. Applicants must be citizens of the United States, or be admitted to the United States for permanent residency; they also must be nominated and sponsored by a public or private nonprofit institution having staff and facilities suitable to the proposed research training. For each month for which an individual receives a National Research Service Award which is made for a period in excess of twelve months, such individual shall engage in one month of health research or teaching or any combination thereof which is in accordance with the usual patterns of academic employment. Details of requirement available from awarding component. For MARC Programs domestic, public or non-profit private institutions may apply. For purposes of meeting the program objectives to increase the number of minority students who will eventually engage in research training, the applicant institution must also be a four-year college, univesity, or health professional school whose student enrollment is drawn substantially from ethnic monority groups (such as American Indian or Alaskan Native; Asian or Pacific Islander; Black, not of Hispanic origin; and Hispanic). Trainee candidates for the Honor Undergraduate program must be outstanding students in their third or fourth year of a baccalaureate degree program and meet the same citizenship requirements of other National Research Service Awards programs. MARC supported undergraduate trainees are not required to meet the payback requirements of the National Research Service Awards program.

Beneficiary Eligibility: Same as Applicant Eligibility.

Credentials/Documentation: The applicant's academic record, research experience, citizenship, institution sponsorship, etc. should be documented in the application form supplied by the National Institute of Mental Health.
